Standard family spends on washing dirty linen about 4 hours a week, or about two hundred hours a year. If a family has small children, the number of dirty things increases.

Before the washer was invented, washing was difficult and time-consuming task. Women had to spend the whole day to wash clothes by hand.

The first washing machine was invented in 1851. Muscle strength was used for drum's work. The first electric washing machine of mass production appeared in Germany.

In the USSR, one of the first automatic washing machines was a machine "Vyatka-machine 12". It cost about four average monthly wages. This washing machine had changed women's lives forever
