History

In 1716 wooden fortress was built in the place, where the Om river flows into the Irtysh river

Its founder is Colonel Ivan Buchholz

Period of the civil war

- During the civil war Omsk was the 3rd capital of Russia

When the white Guards began to retreat, the Red Army took control of the city. Omsk was in terrible situation

Soviet period

- During Great Patriotic war many fabrics and plants were evacuated from the European part of USSR to Omsk.
- Before the collapse of the USSR Omsk was known as "Garden City"

Nowadays

- Now Omsk is a large multinational city with developed infrastructure, industry, culture and transport

Industry

- There are many fabrics and plants in Omsk which produce products for different industries. For example the production association “Polyot” produces rockets for the space industry

But the most biggest one is Oil Refinery. Its area is about 1290 hectares.

Culture

- Omsk has many museums and theatres, such as musical theatre, puppet theatre, drama theatre and others. Recently the Siberian branch of the Hermitage was opened in our city.

Transport

- The Trans Siberian railway passes through Omsk. That's why most people use trains to get to Omsk.
- Also Omsk has airport which can accept many types of planes and all types of helicopters.

Sport

- Some people call Omsk one of the hockey capitals of Russia. Because the “Avangard” team comes from here. Unfortunately, the old hockey arena is demolished. But the construction of a new arena has begun

- Since 1990, an annual marathon has been held in Omsk

A long-exposure photograph of a city street at night. The street is illuminated by a series of tall, black lampposts with white, globe-shaped lights. The lights create a rhythmic pattern down the center of the image. On the left side, there are long, horizontal light trails from moving vehicles, with white and yellow trails for headlights and red trails for taillights. The background features grand, classical-style buildings with ornate facades and a prominent green dome. The sky is dark, and the overall atmosphere is vibrant and urban. A large, white, sans-serif text overlay is centered across the middle of the image.
