Curriculum

The aim of the National Curriculum is to raise standards of education, make sure all children learn basic skills, and prepare them for work or further study.

"school subjects and timetable"

curriculum means different courses of study for different students

School uniform

Most schools in Britain require children to wear a school uniform.

Rules

- Pupils at many secondary schools have to wear a school uniform.
- no high heels!
- Each school has its system of rewards: medals and prizes.
- The pupils who violate various school regulations may be punished in the following ways: for lateness, truancy they may be reported to the Headmaster or named in school assembly
