London is very rich in parks and gardens. Londoners love their parks and are proud of them. London's parks and gardens are free to all.

The Map of London

Hyde Park is famous for its outdoor activities. Londoners ride their bikes and roller – skate on the park roads, play tennis or go horse – riding.

Hyde Park is the biggest park in London.

There is a place called the Speaker's Corner in the Hide Park. On Sunday mornings anyone can speak about anything he or she believes to be important.

St James's Park has the view of Buckingham Palace. This park's lake has been home to many wild birds including swans, pelicans and geese. In summer there are free concerts in the centre of the park.

St James's Park is the oldest of London's parks . It is very beautiful with its green trees and colorful flowers.

In Kensington Gardens you can see the statue of the famous Peter Pan. This park is to the west of Hyde Park.

In Regent's Park you can find a rose garden, several children's playgrounds, a lake and a theatre, where in summer you can enjoy Shakespeare's plays outdoors.

Since 1828 Regent's Park has been home to the London Zoo. The London Zoo is one of the oldest zoos in the world. There are about 5,000 animals that live in the London Zoo.

Give your opinion:

What park is worth visiting?

What can you see in this park?

What would you like to do there?
