I chose this topic because I really like to learn a lot of details about different famous places around the world.

Oxford Street is the heart of London

Between the twelfth century and 1782 it was variably known as Tiburon Road Uxbridge Road, Worcester Road and Oxford Road. It became notorious as the route taken by prisoners on their final journey from Newgate Prison to Oxford street-London street, one of the main streets of Westminster. The busiest shopping street (548 outlets) is known mainly for its fashionable shops.

Interesting fact:

1. Every Christmas the street is decorated with festive lights.

Traditionally, in November, these lights are turned on by celebrities.

2. The unusual pub the Flying Horse is located in the building number 6 on Oxford street. It only exists here since the 1790.

3. The length of the street is 2.4 kilometers.

Thank you for listening.
