

A close-up, slightly angled view of the American flag, showing the stars and stripes in detail. The flag is waving, creating a sense of movement. The colors are vibrant, with a deep blue field for the stars and bright red and white stripes. The text is centered over the lower half of the flag.

WINDOW ON AMERICA

The national flag of the United States of America (or the American flag) has thirteen stripes of red and white, and a blue background with fifty small, white stars. The 50 stars on the flag represent the 50 states, and the 13 stripes represent the thirteen British colonies that fought against the British king to become the first states in the Union.

Barack Hussein Obama II

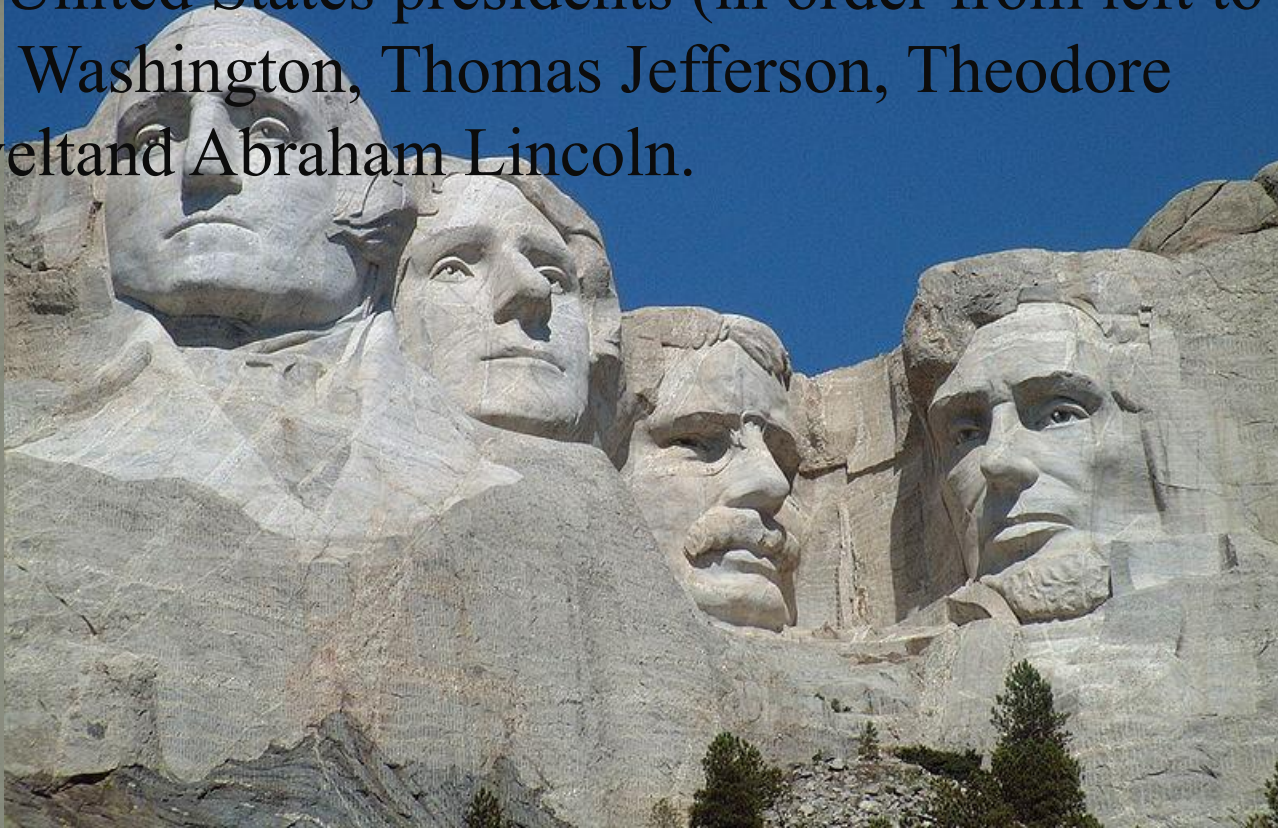

- He is the 44th American president and is the first African American ever elected president of the USA. Born in Honolulu, Hawaii, Obama is a graduate of Columbia University and Harvard Law school. He taught constitutional law at the University of Chicago Law school from 1992 to 2004. He was inaugurated as president on January 20, 2009.

The Statue of Liberty is a sculpture on Liberty Island in New York Harbor, designed by Frédéric Bartholdi. The statue was a gift to the United States from the people of France on the 100th anniversary of American independence. It has become an icon of freedom and of the United States.

For more than 200 years, the White House has been more than just the home of the Presidents and their families. Throughout the world, it is recognized as the symbol of the President, of the President's administration, and of the United States.

The Washington Monument is a statue in Washington, D.C., built to commemorate the first U.S. president, General George Washington. The monument is the world's tallest stone structure, standing over 169 m. It was damaged during the Virginia earthquake of August 23, 2011, so tourists can't climb the 898 steps inside the monument to the observation tower near the top.

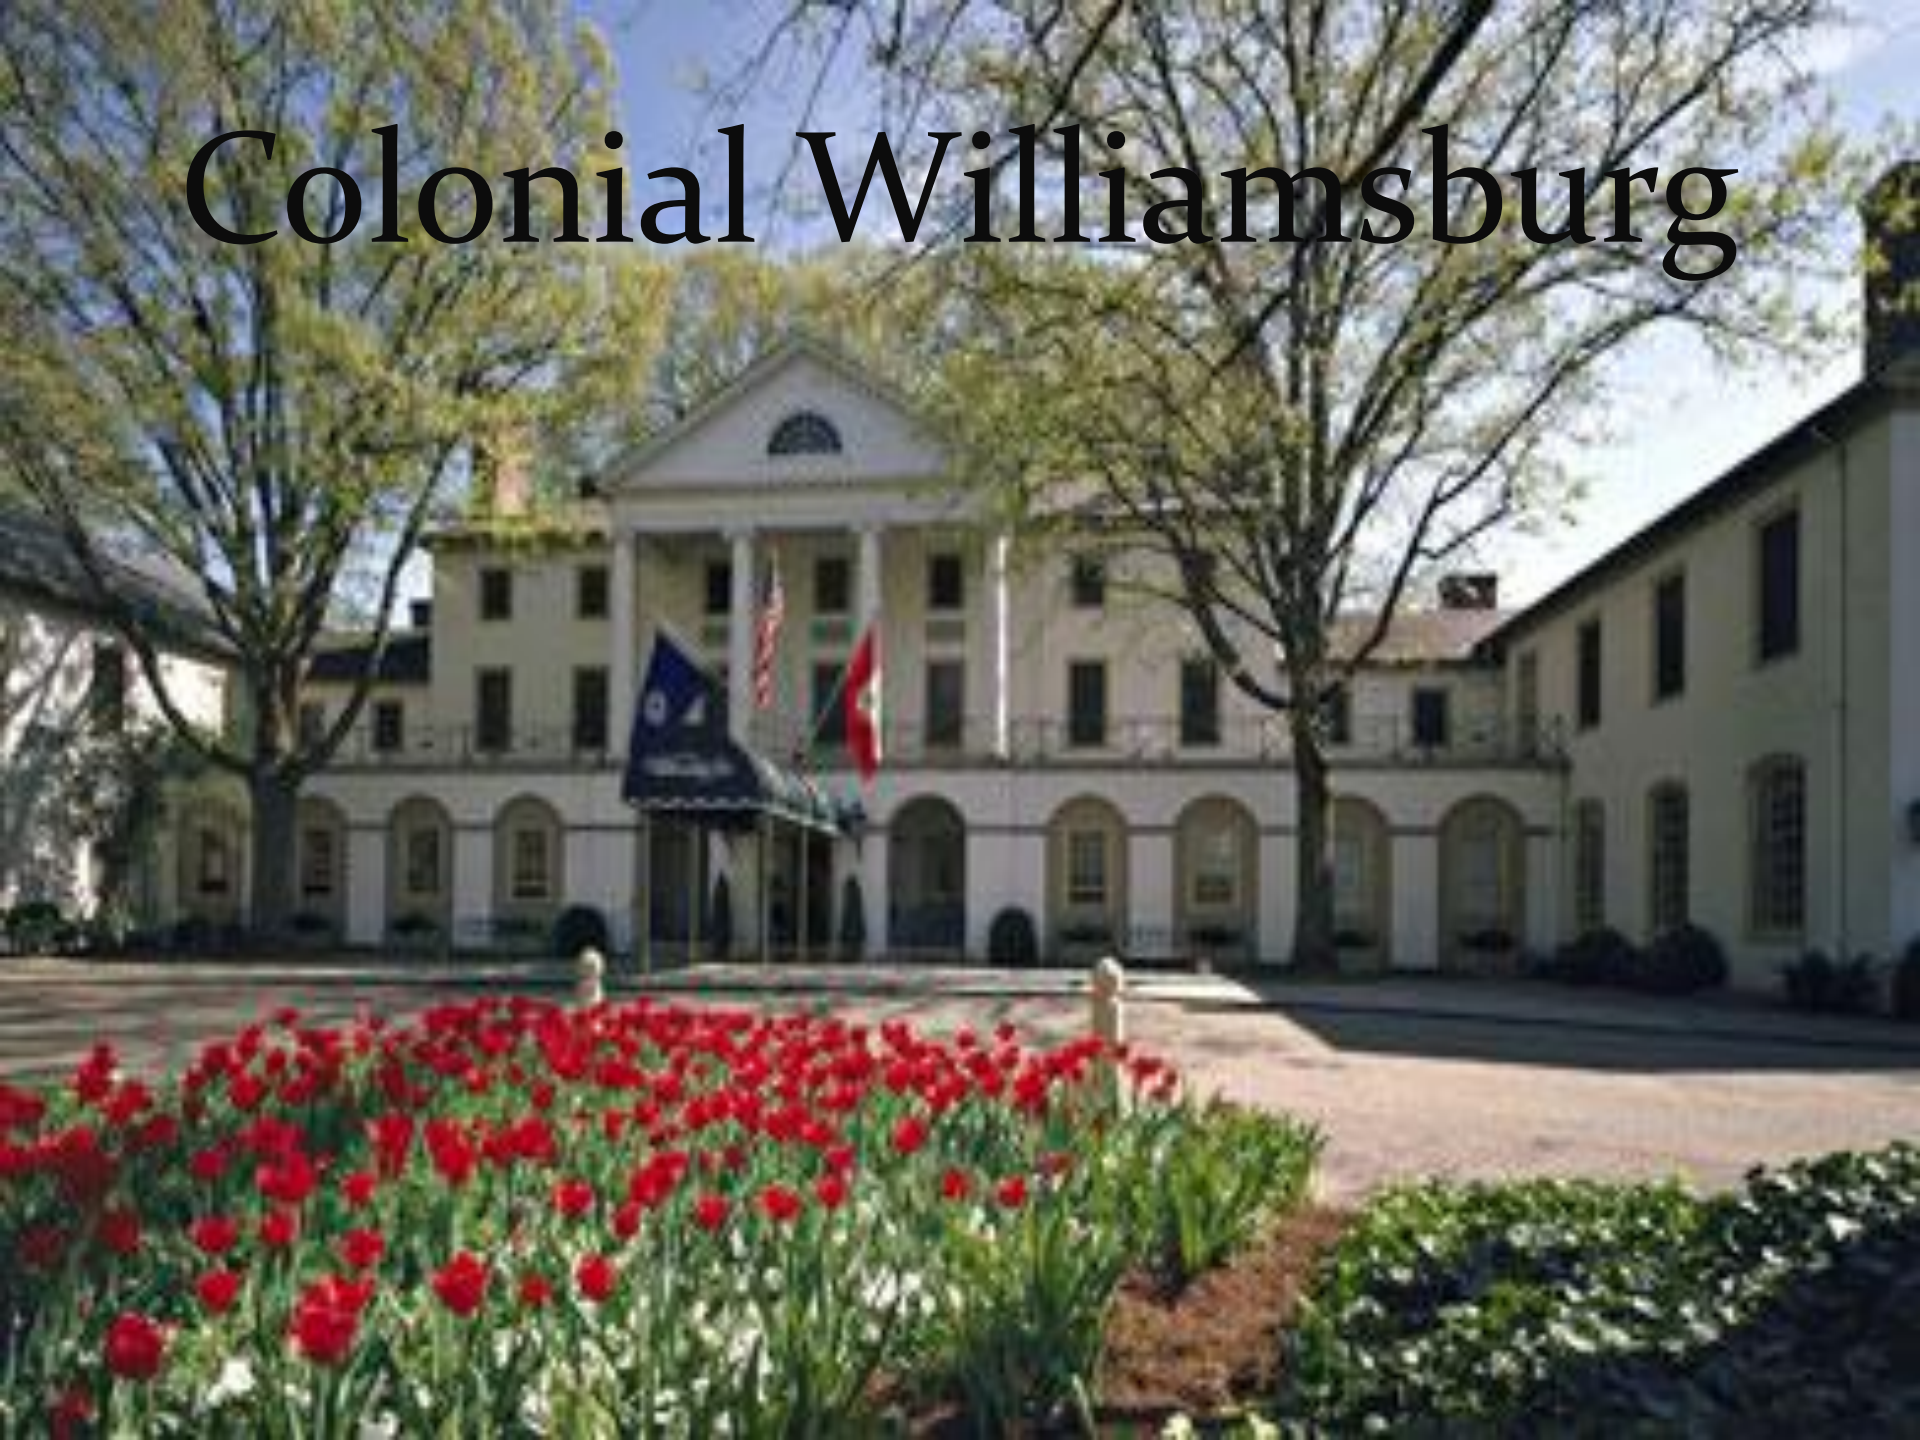

the 16th President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln. It is located on the National Mall in Washington, D.C. Lincoln held the US together during the Civil War in the 1860's and gave American slaves their freedom. He is one of America's best-loved presidents.

Colonial Williamsburg

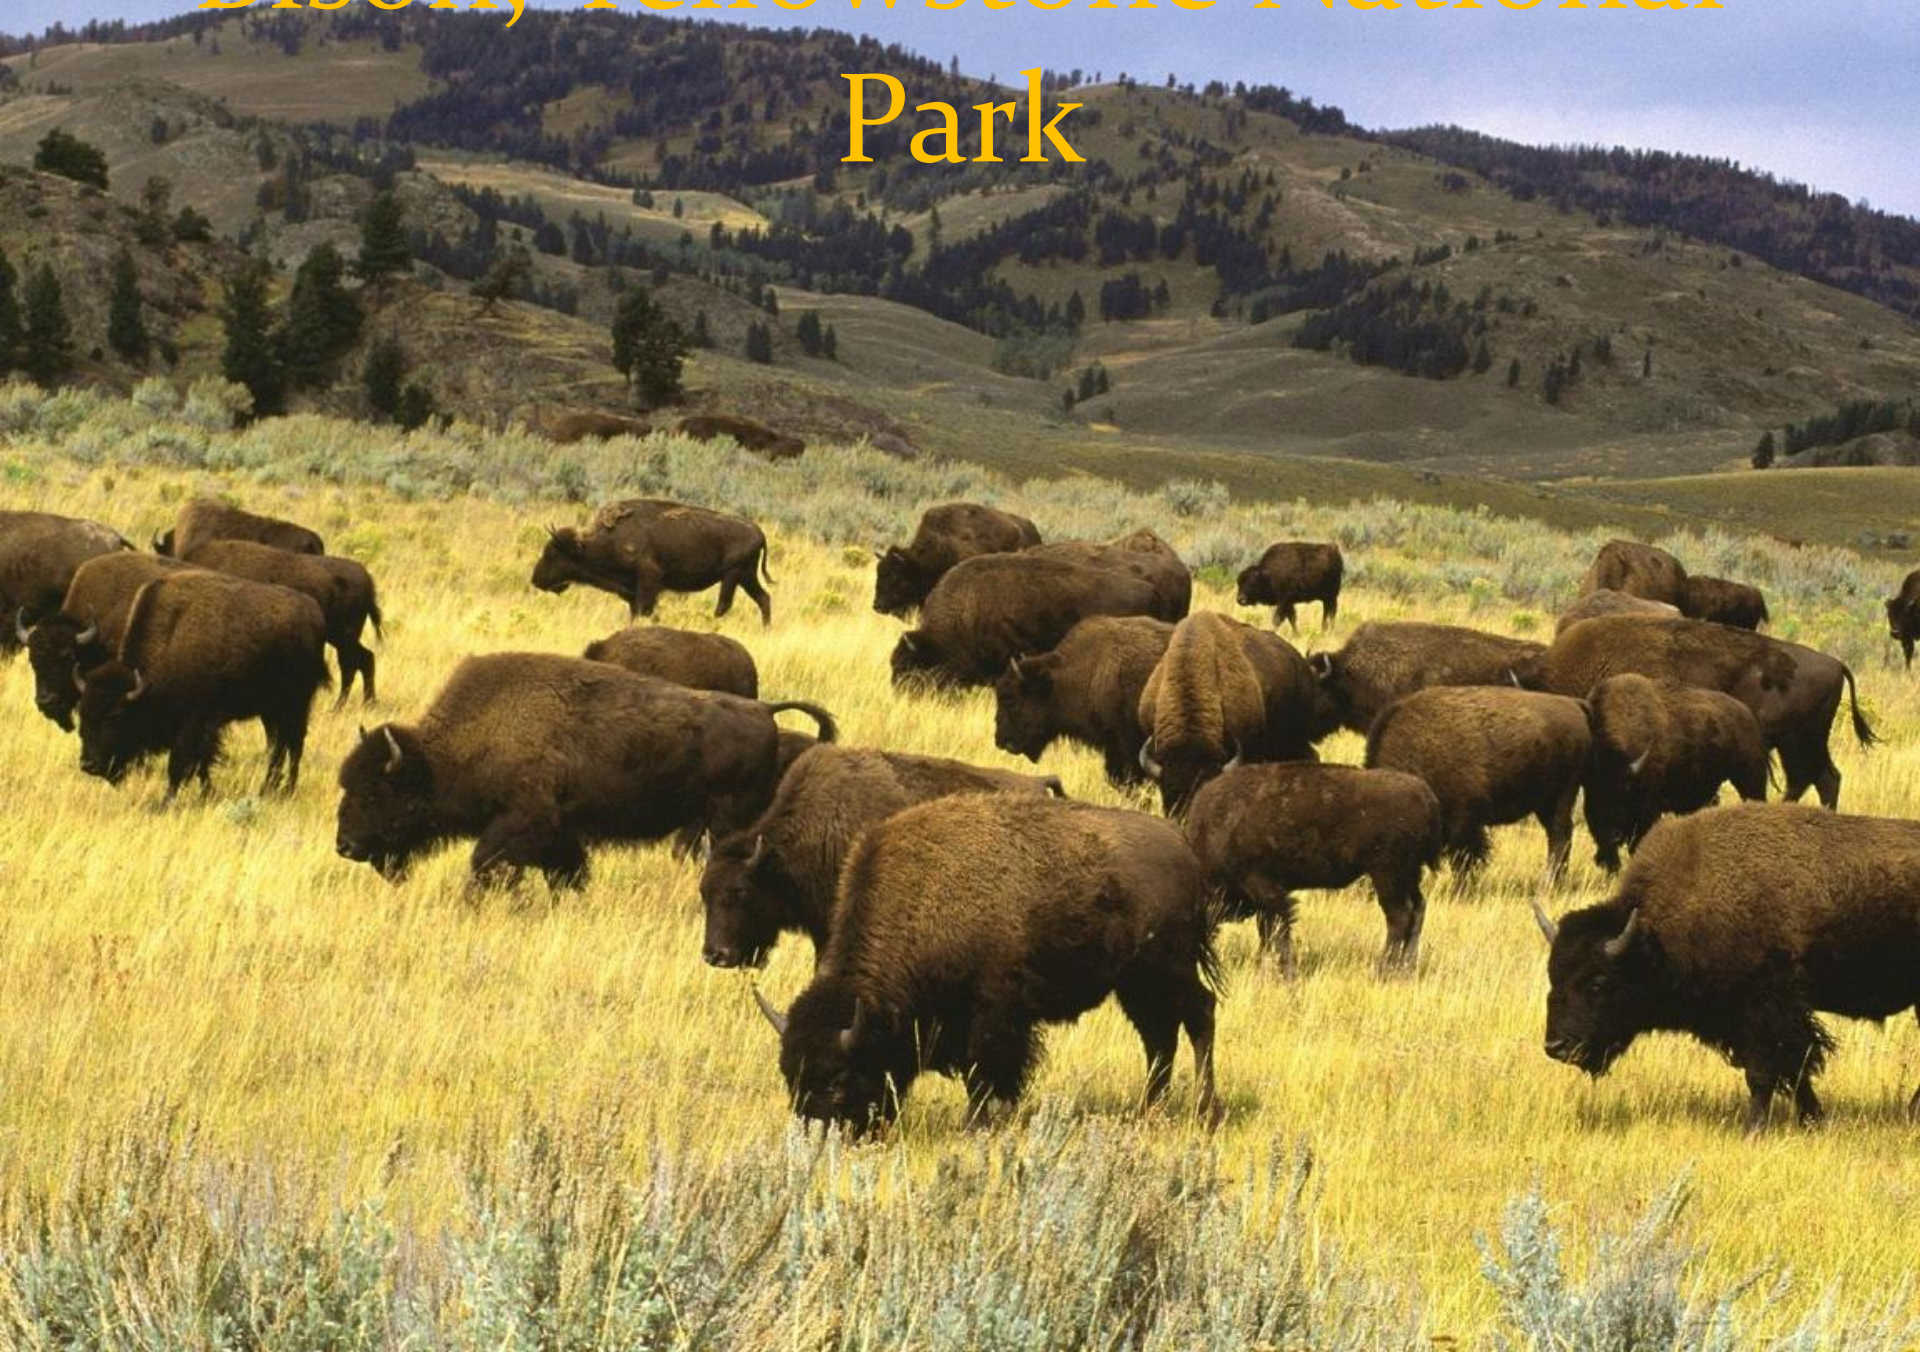

- Colonial Williamsburg is the world's largest living history museum. There hundreds of restored, reconstructed and historically furnished buildings re-create a town which was the 18th-century capital of Britain's largest, wealthiest and most populous colony in the New World. Costumed interpreters tell the stories of the men and women of the 18th century--black, white and native American, slave, indentured and free--and the challenges they faced. The story of Colonial Williamsburg is also the story of the beginnings of the American ideas of freedom and equality that ultimately led to the birth of a new nation.

- Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming is considered the first national park in the world. It is known for its wildlife and its many hot springs and geysers. Old Faithful Geyser, one of the most popular sights in the park, erupts every 90 minutes. Visitors come to see buffalo, foxes, bears, wolves, moose, and the beautiful scenery the park offers.

- Hawaii is the newest of the 50 U.S. states (August 21, 1959), and is the only U.S. state made up entirely of islands. Hawaii's diverse natural scenery, warm tropical climate, abundance of public beaches, and active volcanoes make it a popular destination for tourists, surfers, biologists, and volcanologists alike. On December 7, 1941, Japan bombed the US Navy base at Pearl Harbor. This event brought the US into WWII. The Pearl Harbor Memorial honors the men and women who died that day.

Alaska is the largest state in the United States by area. It is situated in the northwest of the North American continent, with Canada to the east, the Arctic Ocean to the north, and the Pacific Ocean to the west and south. Alaska is the least densely populated of the 50 United States. America bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for 7.2 million dollars. Gold was discovered 13 years later, but Alaska's greatest financial resources are oil and gas.
