Eiffel tower

EIFFEL TOWER is the most recognizable architectural landmark of Paris, world famous as a symbol of France, named after its designer Gustav Eiffel and being a place of pilgrimage for tourists. The designer himself called it simply — the 300-meter tower .

Color throughout his history, the tower repeatedly changed the color of his painting - from yellow to red-brown. The last decades of the Eiffel tower invariably painted in the so-called "brown-Eiffel" - officially patented color close to the natural shade of bronze.
