Halloween is celebrated by nearly all British and American children, and over 70% of adults. Many families carve pumpkins and decorate the outside of their houses.

Part of the fun of Halloween is to get scared out of your wits. This can easily be done by visiting a haunted house.

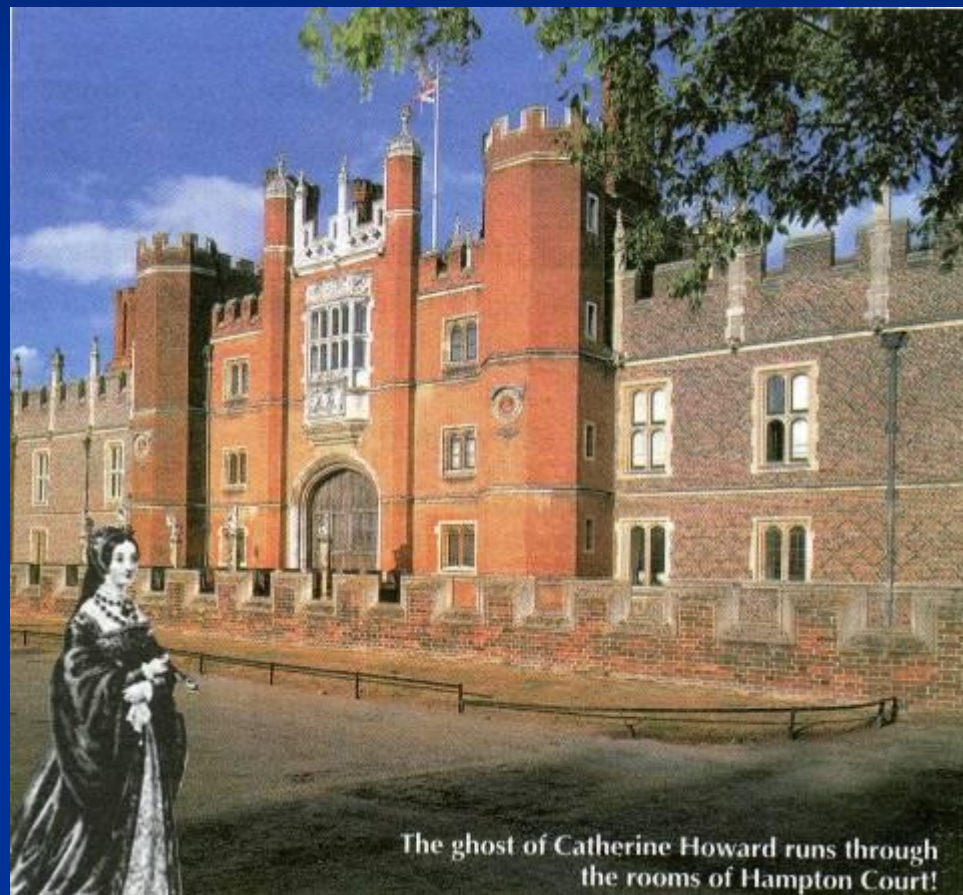

Why do spirits hate the living and try to scare them away?

The living always want to clean up their homes, while ghosts prefer dust, spiders and darkness.

The Chapel at Glamis is the Grey Lady's favourite place.

The beautiful Glamis Castle has a reputation as the most haunted castle in Scotland.

The Grey Lady's favourite place is the Chapel at Glamis. She has been seen by many residents and visitors, including Lady Glanville, the sister of the late Queen Mother. Lady Glanville saw a figure kneeling in the Chapel one day and said that although she could see the figure clearly, the sun shone through her... The Grey Lady is supposed to bring good luck if you see her.

Most children have a wonderful day on Halloween. They go trick-or-treating. Often, there's a party at a friend's home. At most parties, prizes are given for the best costumes. Bobbing for apples, telling fortunes, and snacking on caramel apples, cider, and pumpkin pie.

CARAMEL APPLES

8 apples

2 packet of caramel

1/4 cup water

8 sticks

Put the saucepan with the caramels and water over a pan of boiling water. Boil the water until the caramels melt. Put a wooden stick into the top of each apple, dip the apple into the caramel. Let them cool on wax paper.

BANANA GHOSTS

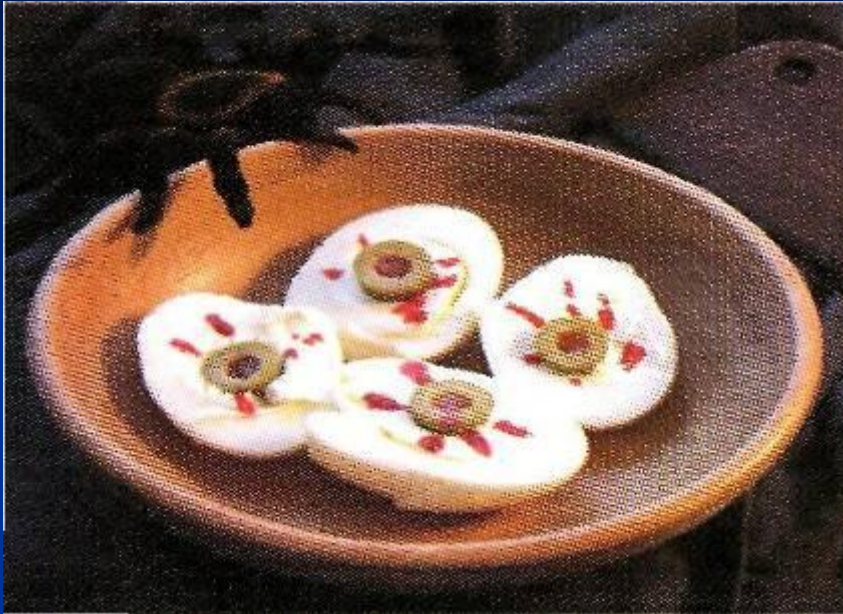

4 bananas

1 bar of white chocolate

8 sticks

Peel the bananas and cut them in halves. Push a stick into each half and freeze until firm (about 3 hours). Put a bar of white chocolate in a saucepan and melt it. Spread the melted chocolate on the frozen banana halves. Put them on a dish. Press on candies or nuts for eyes and mouths and return them to the freezer until they are ready to serve.

DEVIL'S EYEBALLS

6 eggs (boiled hard)

Cream cheese

12 olives

Ketchup

Cut the eggs in halves. Remove yolks and fill the hole with cream cheese. Cut the olives and press them into each cream cheese eyeball. Dip a toothpick into ketchup and draw broken blood vessels in the cream cheese. These eyeballs look terrific!

FINGER SANDWICHES

Thin sliced white bread

Soft butter

Cream cheese

Almonds

Ketchup

Gently flatten the slices of bread and spread them with a little butter and cream cheese. Stick an almond on to each tip to form the nails and add some tomato ketchup for the blood!

HALLOWEEN

The background of the image is a dark, atmospheric scene. In the foreground on the left, a large, glowing jack-o'-lantern with a classic triangular eye and a wide, toothy grin is illuminated from within. The background is dominated by a large, bright full moon in a dark blue, cloudy sky. In the distance, a two-story house with a dark roof and a single lit window is visible through the dark silhouettes of trees and bushes. The overall mood is spooky and festive.

“Boo!”
