British food has a bad reputation in Europe ; but traditional home cooked food is as good as European cooking.

A good example is the traditional British Sunday lunch which consists of roast potatoes and Yorkshire pudding. British people eat lot of meat. Mineral water is not very common. The most popular drink with meals is tea.

British breakfast consists of cornflakes with milk, toasts. With marmalade, honey and tea. They eat a large meal at midday. At about 5 o'clock they have tea with bread and butter and cakes. In some families the midday meal is the chief one of the day. And in the evening they have a simple supper an omelets, or sausages, sometimes bacon and eggs.

Fast Food Restaurants (FFR) are popular all over the world. In Britain also there are Fast Food Restaurants. The food we eat there is - hamburgers and cheeseburgers, a pie and milkshake or coke.

These restaurants are not ordinary ones. There aren't any waiters. You order your food at the counter and pay for it at the same time. You get your food in a bag or a box. There are no plates, knives, forks or spoon there. You eat with your fingers. Drinks are in a paper or a plastic bag. You eat your meal. Then you throw bags and boxes and cups away.

FFRs are very popular with young people. They can eat very quickly there. They can eat when they want: FFRs are open from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Coca-Cola is drunk all over the world.

It is sold in 160 countries.

Coca-cola was invented in 1886 by Dr. John Pemberton in Atlanta.

Is was given the name Coca-Cola by Frank Robinson. In the first year only nine drink a day were sold.

The first factory was opened in Dallas Texas in 1895. Billions of bottle and cans have been produced since then.

Diet coke has been made since 1982, many advertisements have been used to sell this drink. It is certain that Coca-Cola will be drunk far into the XXI century.

Some people judge others by their manners at the table.

They even think there is no better way to judge a person's background than by watching him or her at the table.

The children learn it is impolite to talk while eating or to chew with the mouth open and as they grow older they learn the more obvious manners - not to butter an entire slice of bread, not to take more than one biscuit at a time unless, of course, the hostess should insist.

They are taught to keep their elbows close to their sides while cutting meat. They make sure to leave a little of everything - not enough to be called wasteful, but just a little to show that the meal had been sufficient. And, naturally, they learn that a lady or gentleman doesn't fold up a napkin after having eaten in a public place.

Oxford street is a very big and popular shopping centre in London. There are clothes shops and shoe shops, book shops and dress shops.

One of the largest department stores in Oxford Street is Selfridges. It has more than 300 department on 6 floors. 2.500 employees (people who work there) and every day more than 100.000 people from all over the world walk its doors, eat in its 5 restaurants and use its four lifts and three escalators. Most Londoners have to go to cheaper shops: Marks and Spencer's for clothes and supermarket for food.
