

E-LEARNING

2×2

ABC

E-learning(electronic-learning)

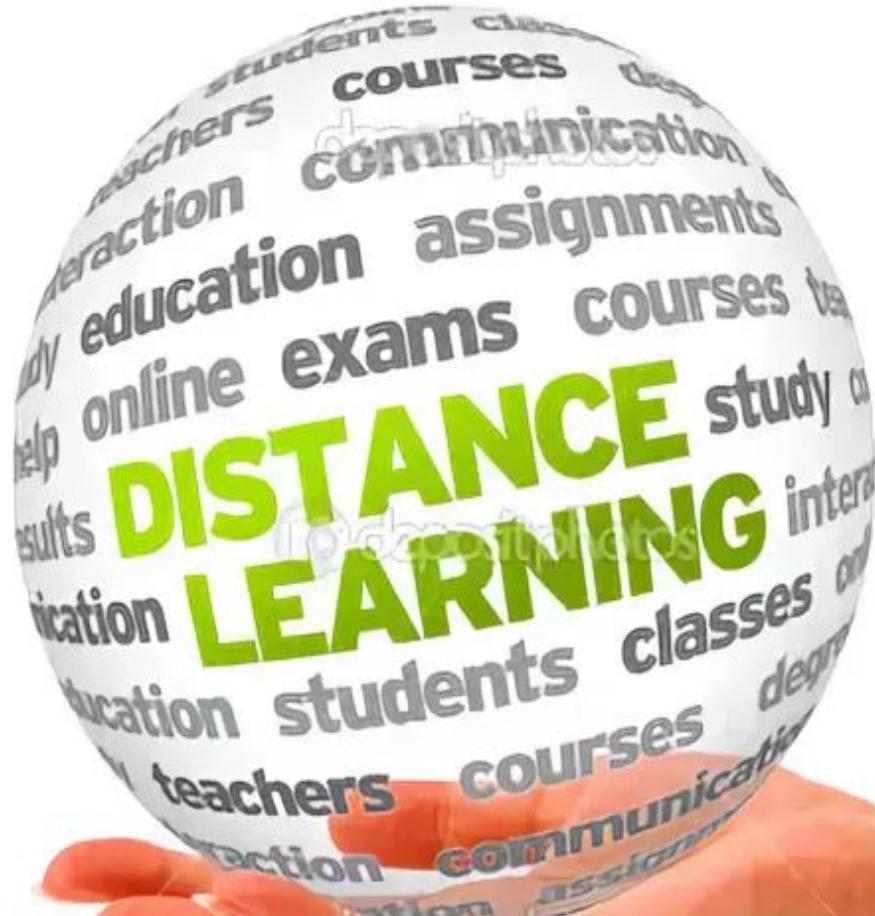

learning done by studying at home using computers and courses provided on the internet

Read the website description and answer the questions

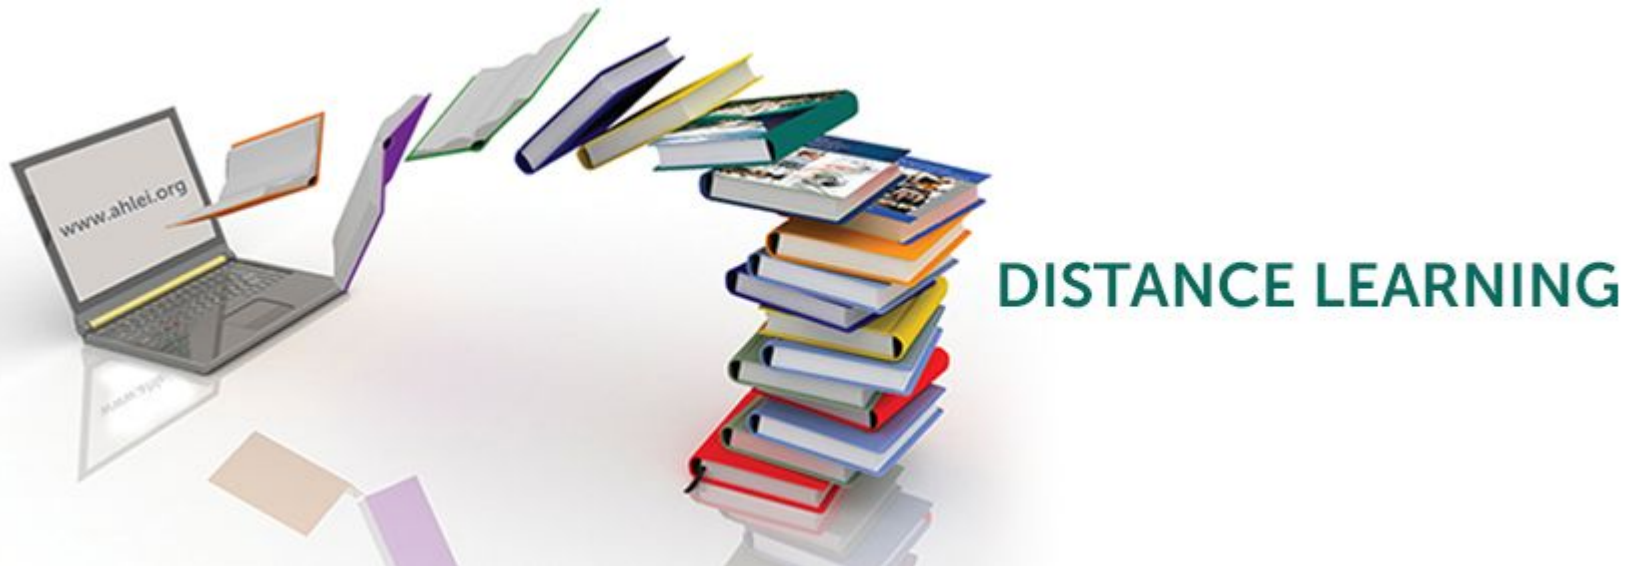

- 1. Why do you think the site has this name?
- 2. Is it a popular site? How do you know?
- 3. Who is this site for: students, teachers, researchers?
- 4. How do you think this site can be used?
- 5. Would you like to use this site? Why? / Why not?

Distance learning

a way of studying, especially for a degree, where you study mostly at home, receiving and sending off work by post or over the internet

E-learning

e-learning can refer to the situation where the interaction between the students and the teacher is done online. Basically, the students receive the training and are taught through an online medium, even though the teacher may be in the same building with them. It is simply students' and teacher's choice for instruction.

Distance learning

Although distance learning is understood and is often used as a synonym of the online learning term, it was initially introduced in order to attract students from all over the world. Universities are offering distance learning degrees dedicated to everyone, as long as they meet entry requirements and qualifications. So it became possible for students from Europe for instance, to easily attend an American college without the need to travel.

Complete the table. Use the words from the list and add some of your own

e-learning

distance learning

traditional learning

A large, empty rectangular box with a light blue gradient background and a thin black border, intended for writing content related to e-learning.A large, empty rectangular box with a light blue gradient background and a thin black border, intended for writing content related to distance learning.A large, empty rectangular box with a light blue gradient background and a thin black border, intended for writing content related to traditional learning.