

"Memory in our hearts!"

Мы вас помним...

I want to tell you about my great-grandmother. Although I was born when she was gone, my grandmother and mother told me a lot about her. I know that my great-grandmother was a very kind, sincere man, although she had a difficult fate.

My great-grandmother's name was Hope Kirillovna. She was born January 29, 1914 in the city of Gelendzhik. My mother was her name Matryona Ivanovna. In the family they had five children. I was told that the great-grandmother of 8 years working in a rich family, nursed a small child to help my mom, since dad died early.

When the Great Patriotic war, my great-grandmother was the daughter of Alla, my grandmother. Now my grandmother Alla often tells what these were terrible times. At that time they lived in Kerch, and in 1944 moved to Sebastopol. My grandmother told me how her 4-year-old girl, mom kept for themselves during the bombing, as she left for work, and my grandmother was left alone.

My great-grandmother Nadia did not participate in the fighting, she worked in the rear laundress, washing linen for the front. This is also a very great contribution to the victory. But after the war archive, where he kept all the documents were burned, and my great-grandmother never received the title "hero of war". For our family it is not important, because we know that at the time a lot of information was lost.

From the movie 'The Song of Bernadette'

After the war, my great-grandmother worked as a salesman in a candy store on the square Lazarev "Golden key". Its valued employees and customers, because she was always polite and friendly.
