The Indo-European family of languages

Languages can be classified according to different principles. The historical or genealogical classification, groups of languages in accordance with their origin from a common linguistic ancestor. Genetically, English belongs to the Germanic or Teutonic group of languages, which is one of the twelve groups of the Indo-European linguistic family. Most of the Area of Europe and large part of other continents are occupied today by the Indo-European languages, and Germanic being one of their major group.

The pre-written history of English and cognate languages was first studied by the methods of historico-comparative linguistics evolved in the 19th c. By applying these methods linguists discovered the kinship of what is now known as the Indo-European (IE) family of languages and grouped them into Germanic, Slavonic, Romance, Celtic, and others. Modern linguistics has improved on the method of historico-comparative linguistic research applied in the 19th c.

Where was the parent language of Germanic languages spoken?

The history of the Germanic group begins with the appearance of what is known, as the Proto-Germanic (PG) language (also termed Common or Primitive Germanic, Primitive Teutonic and simply Germanic).

PG is the linguistic ancestor the parent-language of the Germanic group. It is supposed to have split from related IE tongues sometime between the 15th and 10th c. B.C. There would be Germanic tribes belonged to the western division of the IE speech community. As the Indo-Europeans extended over a larger territory, the ancient Germans or Teutons moved further north than other tribes and settled on the southern coast of the Baltic Sea in the region of the Elbe.

3. The Roman historian Tacitus compiled a detailed description of the life and customs of the ancient Teutons. In his work he reproduced Pliny's classification of the Germanic tribes.

1. The Roman general, statesman, and writer Julius Caesar (100—44 B.C.). In the Commentaries on the War in Gaul (Commentarii de bello Gallico) Caesar wrote that the Germans lived in tribes and tribal unions. It was of particularly great value for the historians. It also follows from Caesar's account that the Teutons were nomads in his time.

What do Greek and Roman writers say about the ancient Teutons?

4. F. Engels in ON THE HISTORY OF THE ANCIENT GERMANS and THE ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY, PRIVATE PROPERTY AND THE STATE. Having made a linguistic analysis of several Germanic dialects of later ages F. Engels came to the conclusion that Pliny's classification of the Teutonic tribes accurately reflected the contemporary dialectal division.

2. In the 1st c. A.D. Pliny the Elder in NATURAL HISTORY (NATURALIS HISTORIA) made a classified list of Germanic tribes grouping them under six headings.

The Gothic language

Because only the Gothic language left its historical written monument, which is called

SILVER CODEX (CODEX ARGENTEUS).

It was written by Ulfilas, a West Gothic bishop, in the 4th c. It is written on red parchment with silver and golden letters, and kept now in Uppsala, Sweden.

The SILVER CODEX is one of the earliest texts in the languages of Germanic group; it represents a form of language very close to PG and therefore throws light on the pre-written stages of history of all the languages of Germanic group, including English.

The Icelandic language

As compared with other North Germanic languages Icelandic has retained a more archaic vocabulary and grammatical system. Modern Icelandic is very much like Old Icelandic and Old Norse, for it has not participated in "the linguistic changes which took place in the other Scandinavian languages, probably because of its geographical isolation.

Old Icelandic written records date from the 12th and 13th c, an age of literary flourishing.

The most important records are:

the ELDER EDDA (also called the POETIC EDDA) —

a collection of heroic songs of the 12th c,

the YOUNGER (PROSE) EDDA

(a text-book for poets compiled by Snorri Sturluson in the early 13th c.)

and the Old Icelandic sagas.

It exist for about 200 years.

About three hundred years ago the Dutch language was brought to South Africa by colonists from Southern Holland. Their dialects in Africa eventually grew into a separate West Germanic language, Afrikaans. Afrikaans has incorporated elements from the speech of English and German colonists in Africa and from the tongues of the natives.

Writing in Afrikaans began as late as the end of the 19th c. Today Afrikaans is the mother-tongue of over four million Afrikaners and coloured people and one of the state languages in the South African Republic (alongside English).
