Sweet tooth

The British have a sweet tooth. That means they like eating sweet things like puddings and pies, jams, biscuits and buns, cakes and rolls.

For the British, any time is eat-a-sweet time: tea-break at work, break at school, watching TV at home, on a car journey ['dʒɜːni], in the cinema or theatre. During holidays like Christmas and Easter, and on special days like Mother's Day and Valentine's Day they eat even more sweet things.

True or false

English Sandwiches and English Tea

A lot of people in England eat sandwiches for their lunch. There are a lot of sandwich shops in London. You can buy all sorts of sandwiches in these shops. You can get meat sandwiches, or salad sandwiches, or meat-and-salad sandwiches. And you can get cheese, egg or fish sandwiches. You can even buy fruit sandwiches. Each sandwich has two thin slices of bread. You put butter and meat between the two slices. Lots of foreigners don't like English sandwiches. They like the kind of sandwich we call a roll. Some foreigners don't like English tea, either. English tea is very strong. We make it in a teapot ['ti:pɒt] (чайник). The English drink a lot of tea.

GOOD MANNERS

- Never read while eating
- Don't put your elbows on the table
- Don't speak with your mouth full
- Use a napkin to wipe your lips and hands
- Be polite
- Sit straight
