We hear of music almost in every movie. We are so accustomed to it that sometimes we don't pay attention-why do we need music in the film, what is its purpose?

Does music change anything in the perception of the movie audience or just reinforces the impression?

Is the composer one of the authors of the film on a range with Director and screenwriter or does he subject to them?

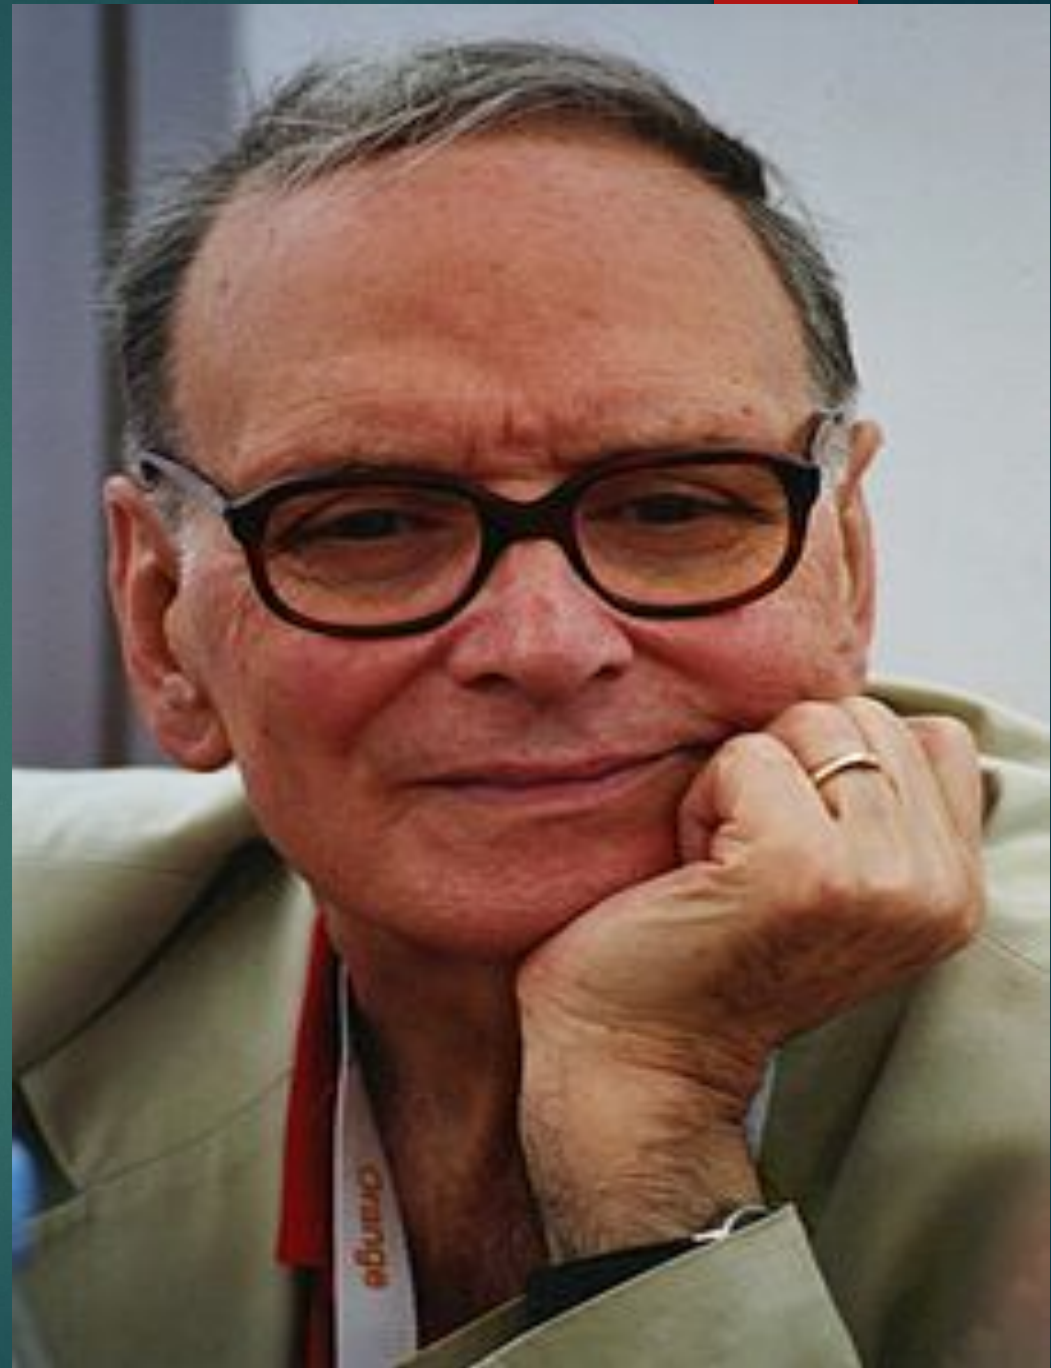

Quite often, when we watch a film, part of our attention is given to musical accompaniment. Thanks to it, we learn better what is happening on the screen, can predict future actions of the characters, or simply enjoy a beautifully machined piece of film. Movies and music were together from the beginning of cinema, because the sound film were appeared 30 years ago after the invention of the cinematograph, and earlier, in the era of silent films, movie music created orchestras. Now everything is much easier. With the help of special programs music can be applied and almost everybody can do it.

- ▶ Some years ago it was not bad to include in the accompaniment of music of Chopin and Haydn, Beethoven and Vivaldi, the genius Mozart, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, Shostakovich. Their beautiful melodies revived dozens of films. But due to various reasons, in order to stay ahead of the competition, the company of Hollywood began to create special music for their films - soundtracks.

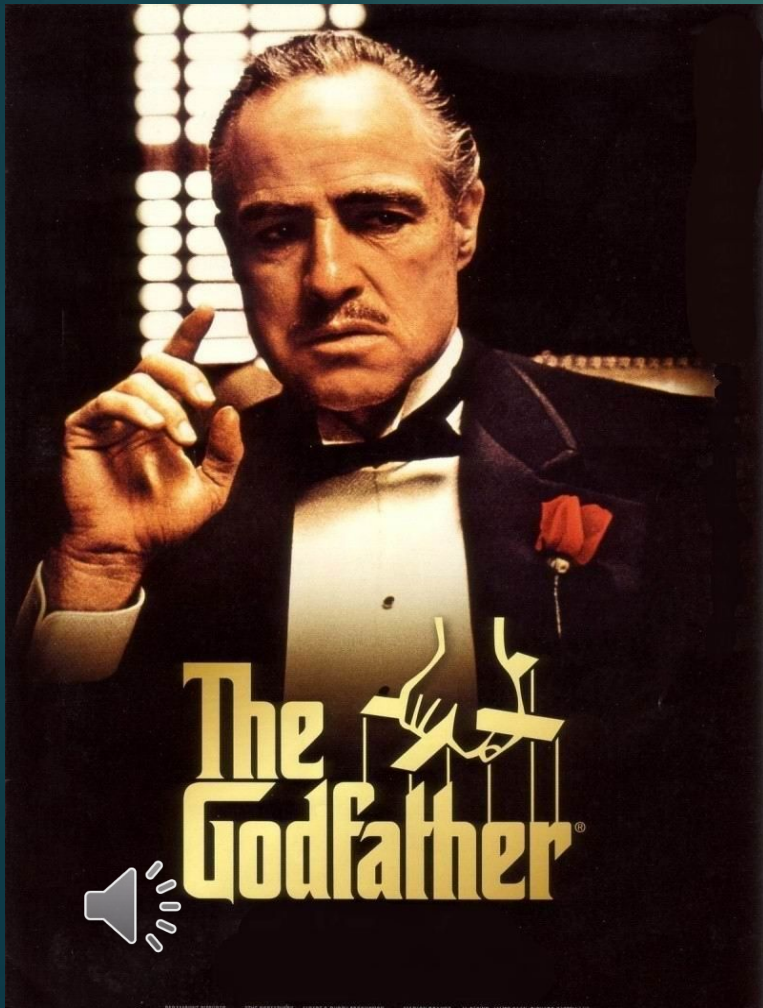

The most legendary of living cinema composer is Ennio Morricone (born in 1928). The number of soundtracks is more five hundred, and perhaps his talent in the creation of melodies has given opportunity to compare him with Mozart.

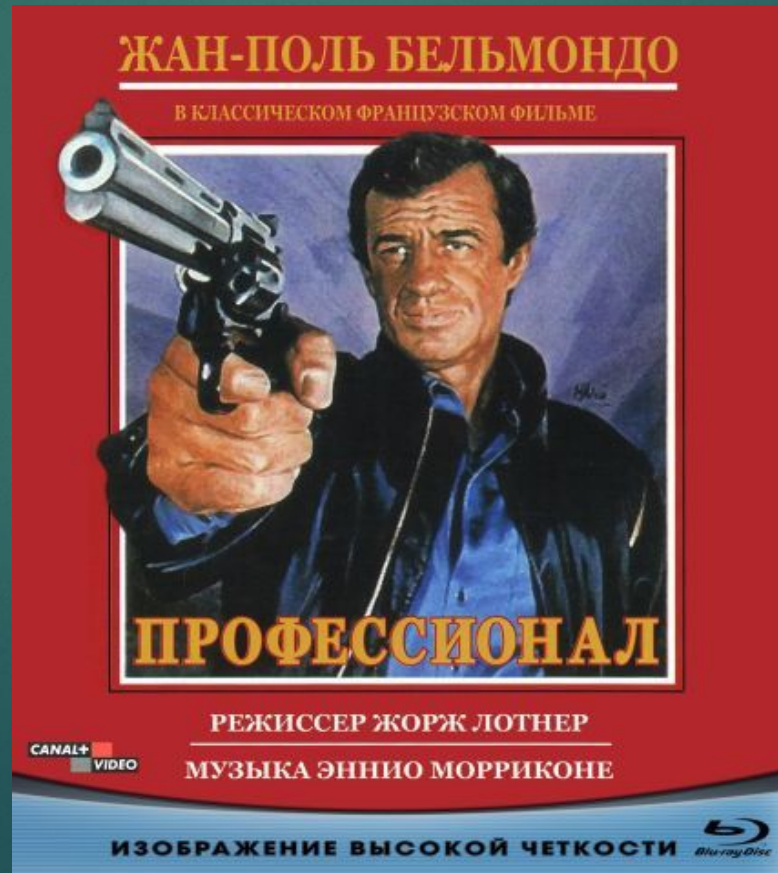

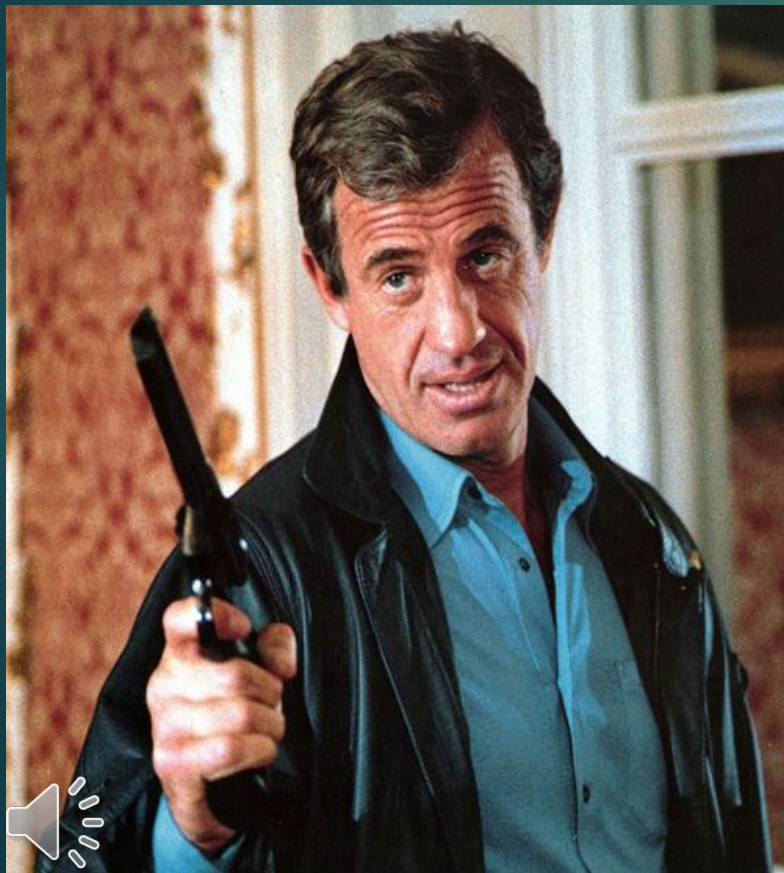

Morricone wrote music about 450 films, including "Once in America", "the Good, the bad and the ugly", "Decameron", "Theorem", "the untouchables", "Professional", "Kill bill", "72 meters" and other

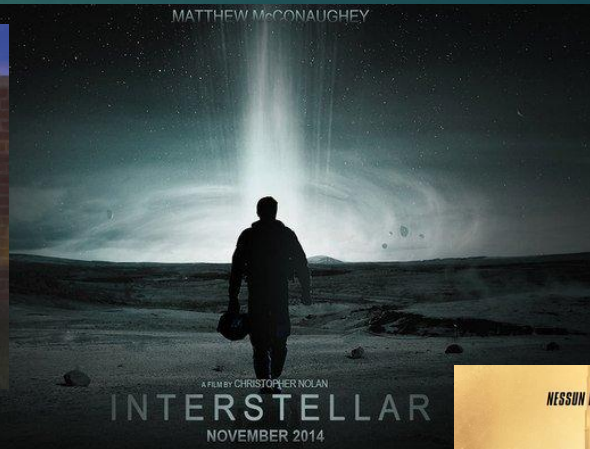

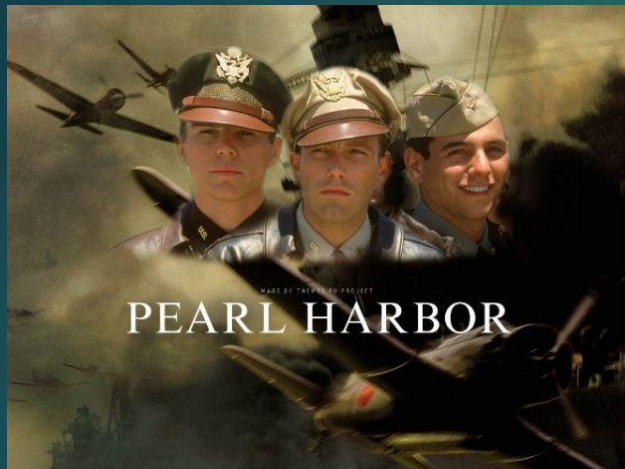

In the film "the Professional" only one melody sounds, but it conveys the same state of mind that the viewer sets up to the correct perception of the film. And there is a reason why this melody appears always in the same execution.

- ▶ And now we want to talk about the composer, whose name is known by almost nobody. but his music is admired by everyone.
- ▶ He worked on the creation of music for such films as "interstellar", "the King of Lion", "", Inception "Gladiator", "the Dark knight"

- ▶ His name is Hans Zimmer
