ST. PATRICK'S DAY

St. Patrick's Day is celebrated on March 17th. It is an Irish holiday honouring Saint Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland. According to the customs of the times, this was not the saint's birthday, but the day of his death. Though St. Patrick's Day is a national holiday in Ireland, it is also celebrated outside the country in the places with a large number of people of Irish descent. People honour Saint Patrick by attending special religious services, enjoying family gatherings, and wearing shamrocks. On March 17th typical Irish sayings on everyone's lips include "Luck of the Irish" and "Top o' the Morning."

For most people, this holiday is partly religious and partly festive. St. Patrick's Day church services are followed by parades and parties, Irish music, songs, and dances. Many people wear green clothing. The green colour floods the windows of shops, candy stores, and departments that sell gifts, souvenirs, and decorations for holidays. It is a time for shamrocks, leprechauns with the pot of

Kirill

Dionis

I want a new life that's easy on me.

I want a new soul that I can set free.

I want some wings to soar through the sky

I want a new shoulder to use when I cry.

I want what's best; through it might no be right.

I want to be strong, though not wanting to fight.

I want to be loved, but only if it's true.

I want a soft breeze to carry me to you.

But getting these things is just too much to ask.

And, achieving each one is too big of a task.

So there's only one wish that I hope will come true:

That someday I will be together with you.

Love is the core of a yellow flame.
Love is the game that remains the same.
Love is the hunger no one can satisfy.
Love is the person that makes you cry.
Love is the person that can burn you.
Love is the person that can be true.
Love is the light that blinds you.
Love is the person you thought you knew.
Love is the person that rips out your heart.
Love is the person that's with you from the start.
Love is the person that holds you tight.
Love is the cloth with holes, through and through.
Love is the person, it is you.

Life is a challenge, meet it.

Life is a duty, complete it.

Life is a game, play it.

Life is costly, care for it.

Life is wealth, keep it.

Life is mystery, know it.

Life is love, enjoy it.

Life is a promise, fulfill it.

Life is sorrow, overcome it.

Life is a song, sing it.

Life is a struggle, accept it.

Life is a tragedy, confront it.

Life is an opportunity, benefit from it.

Life is beauty, admire it.

Life is bliss, taste it.

Life is a dream, realize it.

Life is a challenge, meet it.

Life is an adventure, dare it.

Life is luck, make it.

Life is too precious, do not destroy it.

Life is life, fight for it.

Love English
as we love it.

Good luck!

HOW TO DO HOMEWORK PROPERLY

1. Sit in a straight, comfortable chair in a well-lighted place with plenty of freshly sharpened pencils.
2. Read over the assignment carefully, to make certain you understand it.
3. Go to the kitchen and have a cup of coffee to help you concentrate.
4. Phone your friend from class. If your friend hasn't started the paper yet either, you can both walk to McDonalds and buy a hamburger to help you concentrate.
5. When you get back to your room, sit in a straight, comfortable chair in a clean, well-lighted place with plenty of freshly sharpened pencils.
6. Read over the assignment again to make absolutely certain you understand it.
7. You know, you haven't written to that kid you met at camp last summer. You'd better write that letter now and get it out of the way so you can concentrate.
8. Go look at your teeth in the bathroom mirror.
9. Listen to one side of your favourite cassette and that's it — I mean it! As soon as it's over you are going to start that paper.
10. Listen to the other side.
11. Rearrange all of your CDs into alphabetical order.
12. Phone your friend and ask if he's started writing yet. Exchange derogatory remarks about your teacher, the school (college, university) and the world at large.
13. Sit in a straight, comfortable chair in a clean, well-lighted place with plenty of freshly sharpened pencils.
14. Have a look in the programme guide. Probably you're missing something truly interesting on TV.
15. Phone your friend to ask what he/she is watching.
16. Go look at your tongue in the bathroom mirror.
17. Sit down and do some serious thinking about your plans for the future.
18. Open your door and check to see if there are any mysterious strangers lurking in the hall.
19. Sit in a straight, comfortable chair in a clean, well-lighted place with plenty of freshly sharpened pencils.
20. Read over the assignment one more time.
21. Move your chair across the room to the window and watch the sunrise.
22. Lie face down on the floor and scream at the top of your lungs.
23. Leap up and write the paper.
24. Complain to everyone that you didn't get any sleep because you had to write the paper.

THE FASCINATION OF READING

*The most important thing we've learned,
So far as children are concerned,
Is never, never, never let Them near your television set.*

Roald Dahl

Crispin is 16. He likes sport and he's good at school. He likes studying languages but... he's never read a whole book.

Is it possible? Certainly. Crispin is only one of the young people, who, according to surveys by educational experts, have never managed to go through a book from beginning to end.

Let's get this clear: Crispin and his friends aren't stupid or ignorant. They know how to read perfectly well and they've read a good number of short pieces: stories, fables, cartoons and teenage magazine articles...

But the pleasure of reading has never motivated them to choose a book and read the whole of it.

Crispin's case worries a lot of adults: parents and teachers, but also children's writers and editors.

The number of young people who aren't reading is increasing. Even though they've got interesting books at home suitable for their age group and school libraries full of possibilities.

Why do children today read so little?

There are a lot of reasons. Some say television is to blame as it offers attractive programmes which don't require the "effort" of reading.

For others it's the fault of schools which don't teach children to appreciate literature and its wonders.

It's becoming easier all the time to meet children who know how to use computers or consult video encyclopaedias, but who don't know how to appreciate the fascination of reading.

One children's writer says:

"At the age of 7, I read a whole book alone for the first time. For me it was a great victory. I discovered that the words and signs on the pages became a real, exciting story in my head. For me it was as good as winning a hard basketball match."

Perhaps Crispin and his friends read so little because they've never really tried hard to do it.

What's the reason, in your opinion, that young people today read so little?

fascination [fə'si:neɪʃn] обаяние, прелесть, чары, колдовство survey [sə'veɪ] исследование ignorant [ɪɡnə'rent] невежественный, необразованный
