A.Volkov “A magician of the emerald town”

He knelt beside the steam engine, and his eyes sparkled, "Now it will start to work." In less than a second the steam engine started working. Ft ft ft ... - it puffed. Oh, it was the most beautiful of all steam engines, which you can only imagine, and a little plump man looked so proud and happy, as if he invented it. "On the roof I have one hundred thousand steam engines ... I have to check the safety valve - he said suddenly and began to twist something with his little hand. - When safety valves are not checked different accidents happen. "

A.Lindgren "A kidboy and Karlson, who lives on the roof"

Meanwhile, the king, passing by, noticed on the way the beautiful castle and wished to enter it. The cat heard a thunder of the royal carriage wheels on the drawbridge and ran out to meet them, then said to the king, "Welcome to the castle, your majesty!"

Ch. Perrot "The cat in the boots"

They went out to the Gorky street, the blinding light of car headlights hit into their eyes. It seemed a large ambulance raced right to them, filling the night air with a shrill siren. An old man changed: "Oh, woe to me, an old and unfortunate genie! .." With these words, he rapidly separated from the sidewalk...

L.Lagin "An old man Khottabych"

He lit the lamp, took a pair of scissors, glue and scraps of colored paper. He cut and glued a jacket from brown paper and bright green pants, made shoes from an old shaft and a cap from an old sock.

A. Tolstoi “The adventures of Buratino”

In the middle of the cloud there was a carriage pulled by four horses. Actually, they were not exactly horses, but looked like cucumbers, because in this country all people and animals were alike some vegetable or fruit. Out of the carriage huffing and puffing got a fat dressed in all green. His red, puffy, puffed cheeks seemed to burst like an overripe tomato.

G.Rodari “The adventures of Chipollino”

This car runs on soda pop. The driver's seat was arranged in the middle, and a tank with carbonated water was placed before it. Gas from the tank passed through the tube into a copper cylinder and piston pushing iron ...
