THAMES JUBILEE PAGEANT

Her Majesty travels in a flotilla of over 1,000 boats up the river Thames as part of the four day Jubilee Weekend celebration. By Katherine Baxter

On Sunday 3rd June 2012 The Queen will lead a flotilla of one thousand boats from Battersea to Tower Bridge. The flotilla, expected to measure 7 and a half miles from end to end, will be the largest fleet of ships to be assembled on the River Thames in 350 years, continuing a royal tradition which dates back to 1531 when Anne Boleyn travelled by boat for her coronation. Over one million people are expected to line the banks of the Thames to witness the pageant which will include a diverse mix of the historic and the modern with rowed boats, sailing ships, steamers, wooden launches, canoes and kayaks all decorated for the occasion. Thames piers, riverside roads and bridges will be closed to traffic and there will be up to fifty big screens along the route - which runs from Putney Bridge to Tower Bridge - so members of the public can enjoy the pageant from a variety of vantage points.

There are lots of daffodils in this flowerbed.

This is the biggest solar bridge in the world.

There are lots of solar panels on the roof of the bridge.

That is Millennium Bridge.

There is an old lamp on the left and a modern lamp on the right.

This is a modern London Bridge.
