We will introduce to you our city...

The word “ASTRAKHAN” can be translated as
“THE KHAN’S STAR” or “THE STAR - CITY”

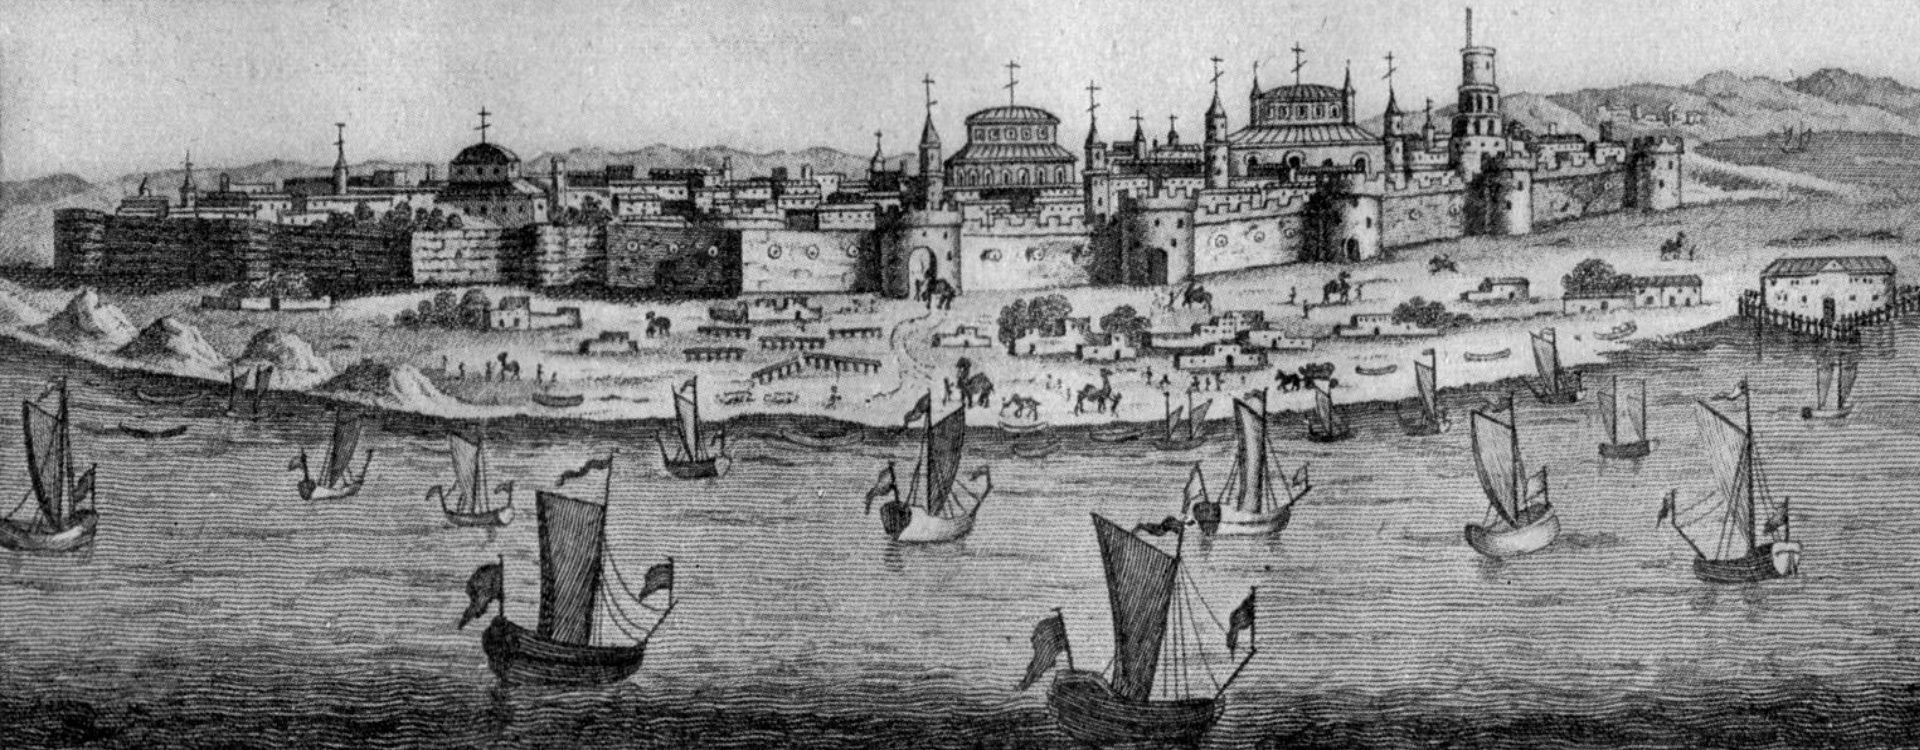

Astrakhan is an ancient city.

A historical black and white photograph of a street in Astrakhan, Russia. The street is paved with cobblestones and has tram tracks running down the center. On the left, a large, multi-story building with many windows is visible. Two men in dark clothing and hats stand on the sidewalk in front of this building. A large, leafy tree stands on the left side of the street, partially obscuring the building. On the right, another building with a sign above the entrance is visible. The sign has Cyrillic text, including "ТАБАЧНЫЙ" (Tobacco) and "МАГАЗИН" (Store). A street lamp is visible near the tree. The overall scene depicts a busy urban street from the late 19th or early 20th century.

It was always very important for the Russian Empire.

A bronze statue of Peter the Great stands on a dark, ornate pedestal. He is depicted in a military-style coat and hat, holding a sword in his right hand. The pedestal is inscribed with the name 'ПЕТР ВЕЛИКИЙ'. In the background, a large, multi-story brick apartment building with red-tiled roofs and many windows is visible under a clear blue sky. The foreground shows a paved plaza with a set of stone steps leading up to the statue.

In 1717 Peter the Great established Astrakhan province.

In 1722 Peter the Great visited Astrakhan.

The Tsar guards Astrakhan severely: every year he sends people, food and wood here to build the Kremlin.

We can see the rich history of Astrakhan in Dubin's photographs. Dubin researched Astrakhan local history.
