Britain's Queen Elizabeth II celebrated 60 years as a (1) monarch on February 6th. She ascended to the (2) throne of the United Kingdom in 1953, when she was a 25-year-old princess. The 85-year-old queen (3) spent the day on official duties. She toured the town of King's Lynn in the east of England. The (4) local mayor opened the celebrations to mark her diamond jubilee. Queen Elizabeth herself (5) launched a new website that shows how much the world has changed during her six-decade (6) reign. Bigger celebrations are scheduled to take (7) place in the U.K. in the summer. There will be a 1,000-ship (8) pageant on the River Thames and a concert at Buckingham Palace.

During Her Royal Highness' reign, there have been 12 British prime ministers, 12 American presidents and six (9) popes. She has also owned 60 corgis (her favourite dog). The diamond jubilee website says she has (10) answered approximately 3.5 million letters. The queen (11) promised her citizens that she would "(12) dedicate myself anew to your service". She also said: "I hope also that this Jubilee year will be a time to give thanks for the great (13) advances that have been made since 1952 and to look forward to the future with (14) clear head and warm heart." The queen is still very popular with British people, (15) despite a downturn in her (16) popularity after the death of Princess.

Parade: Hundreds turned out along St John's Wood High Street in London today to watch soldiers from the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery leave their nearby barracks for the last time before heading to Hyde Park for a 41-gun Royal Salute

Boom:

Soldiers from the Honourable Artillery Company fire blank rounds during the 62-gun Royal Salute at the Tower of London in front of Tower Bridge

Celebrate:

The public were treated to a lavish firework display in Greenwich, London, to mark the eve of Royal celebrations.

STAMPS TO MARK THE OCCASION

The Royal Mail has also marked the Diamond Jubilee by updating the design of the 1st class stamp.

Its traditional gold background has been replaced with a blue colour scheme and the words 'Diamond Jubilee' highlighted in iridescent ink.

Queen Elizabeth herself launched a new website

The screenshot shows a Windows Internet Explorer browser window displaying the official website of the British Monarchy. The browser's address bar shows the URL <http://www.royal.gov.uk/>. The website's header features the Royal Coat of Arms and the text "The official website of The British Monarchy". Below the header is a navigation bar with a dropdown menu for "Choose your Commonwealth Realm", a search bar, and links for "What is a Realm", "A-Z index", "Site map", "Contact Us", "Links", and "FAQs".

Diamond Jubilee Medal

A new commemorative medal was created to mark the 2012 celebrations of the 60th anniversary of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II's accession to the Throne as Queen of Canada. The Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal is a tangible way for Canada to honour Her Majesty for her service to this country. At the same time, it serves to honour significant contributions and achievements by Canadians.
