

Mass Media in the UK

Newspapers

Fleet Street

- Fleet Street has been the home of the British press for 300 years. Here are published almost all Britain's national newspapers. Here also are the headquarters of many magazines, foreign and provincial press bureaus, international news agencies

National Newspapers

“Qualities or Heavies”		“Populars or Yellow Press”
Dailies	Sundays	Dailies	Sundays
The Daily Telegraph	The Sunday Telegraph	The Sun	The Sunday Mirror
The Guardian	The Observer	The Daily Mirror	The Mail on Sunday
The Times	The Sunday Times	The Daily Mail	The Sunday Express
The Independent		The Daily Express	The People
The Financial Times		The Daily Star	The News of the World

“Qualities”

National Dailies

Title, Foundation Date	Political Tendency	Circulation
The Daily Telegraph (1855)	Con	1,138,000
The Guardian (1821)	Ind (Lib)	470,000
The Times (1785)	Con	450,000
The Independent (1886)	Ind	375,000
The Financial Times (1888)	Ind	206,000

The Daily Telegraph

The Daily Telegraph
No swine flu jab for children

- The Daily Telegraph is a daily morning broadsheet newspaper distributed throughout the UK and internationally. In January 2009 the Telegraph was the highest selling British broadsheet newspaper. It has been politically conservative in modern times, therefore the paper is often referred to as the Torygraph.

The Guardian

- The Guardian is a British national daily newspaper owned by the Guardian Media Group.
- It is unique among other British newspapers in being owned by a foundation (the Scott Trust).
- Founded by textile traders and merchants, The Guardian had a reputation as an “organ of the middle class”.
- It is known to be to the left of political spectrum. This is reflected in the paper’s readership.
- It’s nickname is Grauniad because the paper has a reputation for frequent typographical errors.

The Independent

- The Independent is a British newspaper published by Tony O'Reilly's Independent News & Media.
- It is nicknamed the Indy, while the Sunday edition is the Sindy.
- Launched in 1986, it is one of the youngest UK national daily newspapers.
- It is regarded as leaning to the left politically, although it has not affiliated itself to any political party.
- The Independent has a reputation for its emphasis on views, rather than on news. Not surprisingly so, T. Blair once called The Independent a "Viewspaper".

The Financial Times

- The Financial Times (FT) is a British international business newspaper.
- The FT specialises in business and financial news. The FT is the only paper in the UK providing full daily reports on the London Stock Exchange and world markets.

“Populars”

National Dailies

Title, Foundation Date	Political Tendency	Circulation
The Sun (1964)	Con	4,146,000
The Daily Mirror (1903)	Lab	3,061,000
The Daily Mail (1896)	Con	1,792,000
The Daily Express (1900)	Con	1,679,000
The Daily Star (1987)	Con	1,013,000

The Sun

- The Sun is a daily tabloid published in the UK and Ireland.
- It has the highest circulation of any daily newspaper in the world.
- The Sun relies heavily on stories and scandals involving celebrities and the entertainment industry. It contains sections such as Bizarre (pop music stories and gossip) and TV Biz (television stories, concentrating on soap operas and reality TV).

The Daily Mirror

- The Daily Mirror is a British tabloid newspaper founded in 1903.
- Twice in history its title was changed to read simply The Mirror.
- It contains cartoon strips, comics, a letters page, a problem page, “shock issues” intended to highlight a particular news story.

The Daily Mail

- The Daily Mail is a British daily middle market tabloid newspaper.
- It is the UK's second biggest-selling daily newspaper after The Sun.
- The Daily Mail was Britain's first daily newspaper aimed at the newly literate "lower-middle class market resulting from mass education".
- It was from the outset, a newspaper for women, and is still the only British newspaper whose readership is more than 50% female.

The Daily Express

- The Daily Express is a conservative British tabloid newspaper.
- The Daily Express select front-page stories that follow recurring themes, and often ignore the major news of the day in favour of spurious stories.
- During 2009 and 2010, health stories were very popular. For example, they featured the discovery of rather unusual potential cures for diseases such as Alzheimer's disease or cancer. The usual headlines: "Sunshine vitamins cut risk of cancer".
- The Daily Express also features global warming stories.

