

Do you mind if I ..... ?

Вы не против, если я .... ?

Вы не возражаете, если я
.....?

asking for permission

Do you mind if I open the window?

Вы не против, если я приоткрою окно?

(You (yourself) will open the window. Asking for permission very politely.)

NB! you can also say:

- 1) Can I open the window?
- 2) Could I open the window? (more polite than #1)
- 3) Do you mind if I open the window? (polite = #2)
- 4) Would you mind if I opened the window? (more polite)
- 5) Do / Would you mind my / me opening the window?

Asking for Permission

When we ask for permission politely, we can use would you mind if I + past or do you mind if I + present:

- Do you mind if I sit here?
- Would you mind if I turned on this light?
- Do / Would you mind my / me* opening the window? (my – formal; me – more common)

Local Man Doesn't Mind Being Recorded

In a stunning display of relaxation and kindness, Mr. Bill Jones told reporters he did not mind being recorded. While anyone else may have shown reluctance toward audio recordings, whether out of concern for privacy or a simple dislike of having their own voice digitized by someone else, Bill was completely okay with being recorded. This stands in stark contrast to our expectation that, in fact, not have wanted to be recorded. This reporter was certainly surprised, in the best possible way. Bill's quick and

GIVING A PERMISSION

Do you mind if I sit here?

- Sure, go ahead.
- Sure. No problem.
- 'Not at all. Please do.'
- No, I don't* mind. (*if someone asked: "Do you mind ...?")
- No, I wouldn't* mind. (*if someone asked: "Would you mind ...?")
- No, I don't*. Please feel free.
- No, I don't*. Fine! Feel free!
- No, I don't*. That's fine by me.
- Sure. Be my guest.
- No, I don't. Please do.
- Well, I don't see why not.
- Sure. Help yourself.

Structures Used when Asking for Permission

Can I + verb - VERY INFORMAL

Can I go out tonight?

Can he have dinner with us?

NOTE: The use of "Can I do something?" is very informal, and considered incorrect by many.

However, it is used in everyday informal speech

Structures Used when Asking for Permission

May I + verb

May we go out with our friends tonight?

NOTE: In modern society, this form has become a little more formal and is often replaced with other forms such as "Can I..." and "Could I ...". Many argue that "Can I ..." is incorrect because it refers to ability. However, this form is quite common in everyday situations.

Structures Used when Asking for Permission

Could I please + verb

Could I please go with Tom to the movie?

Could we please go on trip this weekend?

Do you think I could + verb

Do you think I could use your cell phone?

Do you think I could borrow your car?

Structures Used when Asking for Permission

Would it be possible for me + infinitive

Would it be possible for me to use your computer for a few minutes?

Would it be possible for me to study in this room?

Would you mind if I + verb in past

Would you mind if I stayed a few more minutes?

Would you mind if I took a five minute break?

Structures Used when Asking for Permission

- Is it okay if I use this ?
- Is it all right if I leave early ?
- Is it a problem if I leave early?
- Would it be all right if I borrowed your lawn mower?

GIVING A PERMISSION

Answers for questions on slides 14-18.

- Sure, go ahead.
- Sure. No problem.
- Yes, please feel free.
- Yes, fine! Feel free!
- Yes, that's fine by me.
- Sure. Be my guest.
- Yes, please do.
- Well, I don't see why not.

REFUSING A PERMISSION

- I'd rather you didn't. / Yes, I do mind, actually.
- No, I'm afraid it's not allowed.
- Unfortunately, I have to say no.
- I'm afraid that's not possible.
- No, please don't.
- I'm afraid, but you can't do this.
- I'm sorry but .....

Examples

Son: Dad, can I go out tonight?

Father: It's a school night! I'm afraid that's not possible.

Son: Dad, all my friends are going to the game!

Father: I'm sorry son. Your grades haven't been the best recently. I'm going to have to say no.

Son: Ah, Dad, come on! Let me go!

Father: Sorry son, no is no.

Examples

Jack: Hi Sam, do you think I could use your cellphone for a moment?

Sam: Sure, no problem. Here you are.

Jack: Thanks buddy. It will only be a minute or two.

Sam: Take your time. No rush.

Jack: Thanks!

Examples

Harry needs to make a call but his phone battery is flat. He's with his friend Bill.

Harry: 'Oh no, my phone's dead. Is it OK if I use yours? To phone Carol.'

Bill: 'Yeah sure. Go ahead. How are you and Carol getting on?'

Harry: 'Cheers. Not bad, not bad at all.'

Examples

Paul needs to ask his boss for permission to leave work early the next day:

Paul 'Mr Clark.'

Mr Clark 'Hi Paul, is everything OK?'

Paul 'Yes thanks. It's just, do you mind if I leave early tomorrow? I need to take my sister to the airport.'

Mr Clark 'No, of course not. That's fine.'

Paul 'Thanks.'

Asking someone to do something

We use the phrases would you mind + -ing form, and do you mind + -ing form to ask people politely to do things. Would you mind is more polite and more common:

- Would you mind being quiet for a minute?
- Would you mind (not) opening the window, please?
- Do you mind turning down the volume a little, please?
