Balzac was a famous French writer of great talent. However, he had a strange hobby. He liked to tell a person's character by his or her handwriting. He was very proud of his hobby. One day his friend brought him an exercise book and said: "My dear friend, I want to know what you think of this boy's character. Tell me the truth. He is not my son." Balzac was very glad to demonstrate his talent. He began to study the handwriting. After some minutes of careful studying he said: "All right, I'll tell you the truth. This boy is a bad and lazy fellow." "This is very strange," said his friend and smiled, "because this is your exercise book from when you were a boy".
