

Fairy-tale “Monkey's face by Ash”

Monkey drew a picture of her mum at school. After school she wanted to take the picture home to her mum. On her way home she met her friend an owl. Monkey said: "This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?" "Her eyes are too small", -said the owl.

“You are right”, and she drew her mum with big eyes. Then on her way home she met her friend an alligator. Monkey said: “This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?” The alligator said: “Her mouth is too small and she has no teeth”. “You are right”,-said the monkey and drew her mum with a great mouth and big teeth.

On her way home she met her friend a giraffe. Monkey said: “This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?” The giraffe said: “Her neck is too short.” And monkey said: “You are right” and drew her mum with a long neck. Then monkey went home to her mum.

On her way home she met her friend a rabbit. Monkey said: “This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?”

The rabbit said: “Her ears are too small”.

And monkey said: “You are right”, and drew her mum with great big ears. Then monkey went home to her mum.

On her way home she met her friend an elephant. Monkey said: “This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?” The elephant said: “Her nose is too short”. “You are right”-said the monkey and drew her mum with a great long nose. Then monkey went home to her mum.

On her way home she met her friend a lion. Monkey said: “This is a picture of my mum I drew at school. Do you like it?” The lion said: “She has no hair”. And monkey said: “You are right”, and drew her mum with great big hair. And she went home to take the picture of her mum.

And when she got home she said: “Mum!
This is a picture of you I drew at school today. Do you like it?” And her mum said
: “I love it!” (Because all mums love their children.
