

A photograph of the Raffles Hotel in Singapore at night. The building is a grand, multi-story structure with classical architectural features, including a prominent portico with columns and a central pediment. The entire building is illuminated with warm, golden lights, highlighting its intricate details and the glowing windows. A flagpole with a flag is visible on the roof. The sky is a deep blue, and the foreground shows some dark silhouettes of trees and a street.

Raffles hotel Singapore

in Singapore. It was established by two Armenian brothers from Persia—Martin and Tigran Sarkies—in 1887. In later years they were joined by younger brothers Aviet and Arshak and kinsman Martyrose Arathoon. With their innovative cuisine and extensive modernisations, the firm built the hotel into Singapore's best known icon. It was named after Stamford Raffles, the founder of modern Singapore, whose statue had been unveiled in 1887. The hotel is currently managed by Fairmont Raffles Hotels International and houses a tropical garden courtyard, museum, and Victorian-style

A photograph of a museum gallery. The room is filled with display cases and framed photographs. The lighting is warm and focused on the exhibits. The text is overlaid on the image in a large, white, sans-serif font.

The hotel houses the Raffles Hotel Museum, which displays the rich history of the hotel. The museum was created after a well-orchestrated heritage search by a public relations consultant. People from all over the world returned items and memorabilia of their stay at the 'grand lady of the Far East'; photographs, silver and china items, postcards and menus as well as old and rare editions of the works of the famous writers who stayed there. These items are displayed in the museum along with photographs of its

The image shows the interior of the Raffles Hotel, featuring a long bar on the left with a display of pastries, a woman in a white uniform behind the counter, and a dining area with wooden tables and chairs. Large windows in the background offer a view of the city. A red and white circular logo is visible on the right side of the image.

Food and beverage outlets

Interior view of Raffles Hotel

Ah Teng's Bakery

Bar and Billard Room & Martini Bar

Empire Cafe

Long Bar, birthplace of the Singapore Sling

Long Bar Steakhouse

Raffles Courtyard & Gazebo Bar

Raffles Creamery

Raffles Grill

Tiffin Room, Singapore's oldest restaurant

Writer's Bar

Royal China at Raffles (branch of the famous Royal China in London)

Shinji by Kanesaka

View of the courtyard and some of the hotel rooms

Raffles Hotel is reputedly where the sole surviving wild tiger in Singapore was shot and made extinct. Some stories place this event in the Long Bar. The hotel management claims the tiger escaped from enclosure at a nearby
"native show" and was chased underneath the hotel's Bar & Billiard Room (a raised structure) and shot to death there on 13 August 1902.

A photograph of the Raffles Hotel lobby, featuring ornate chandeliers, a woman in a red jacket, and a man in a suit.

housing boutique brands such as Louis Vuitton, Surrender, and Tiffany & Co.. The arcade houses most of the hotel's restaurants. It also has shops such as the custom tailor, CYC The Custom Shop, <sup>[9]</sup> which makes shirts for Singapore's first prime minister, Lee Kuan Yew, and the third and current prime minister, Lee Hsien Loong. The third floor of the arcade houses the Raffles Hotel Museum and Jubilee Hall.