

SPECKLED HEN

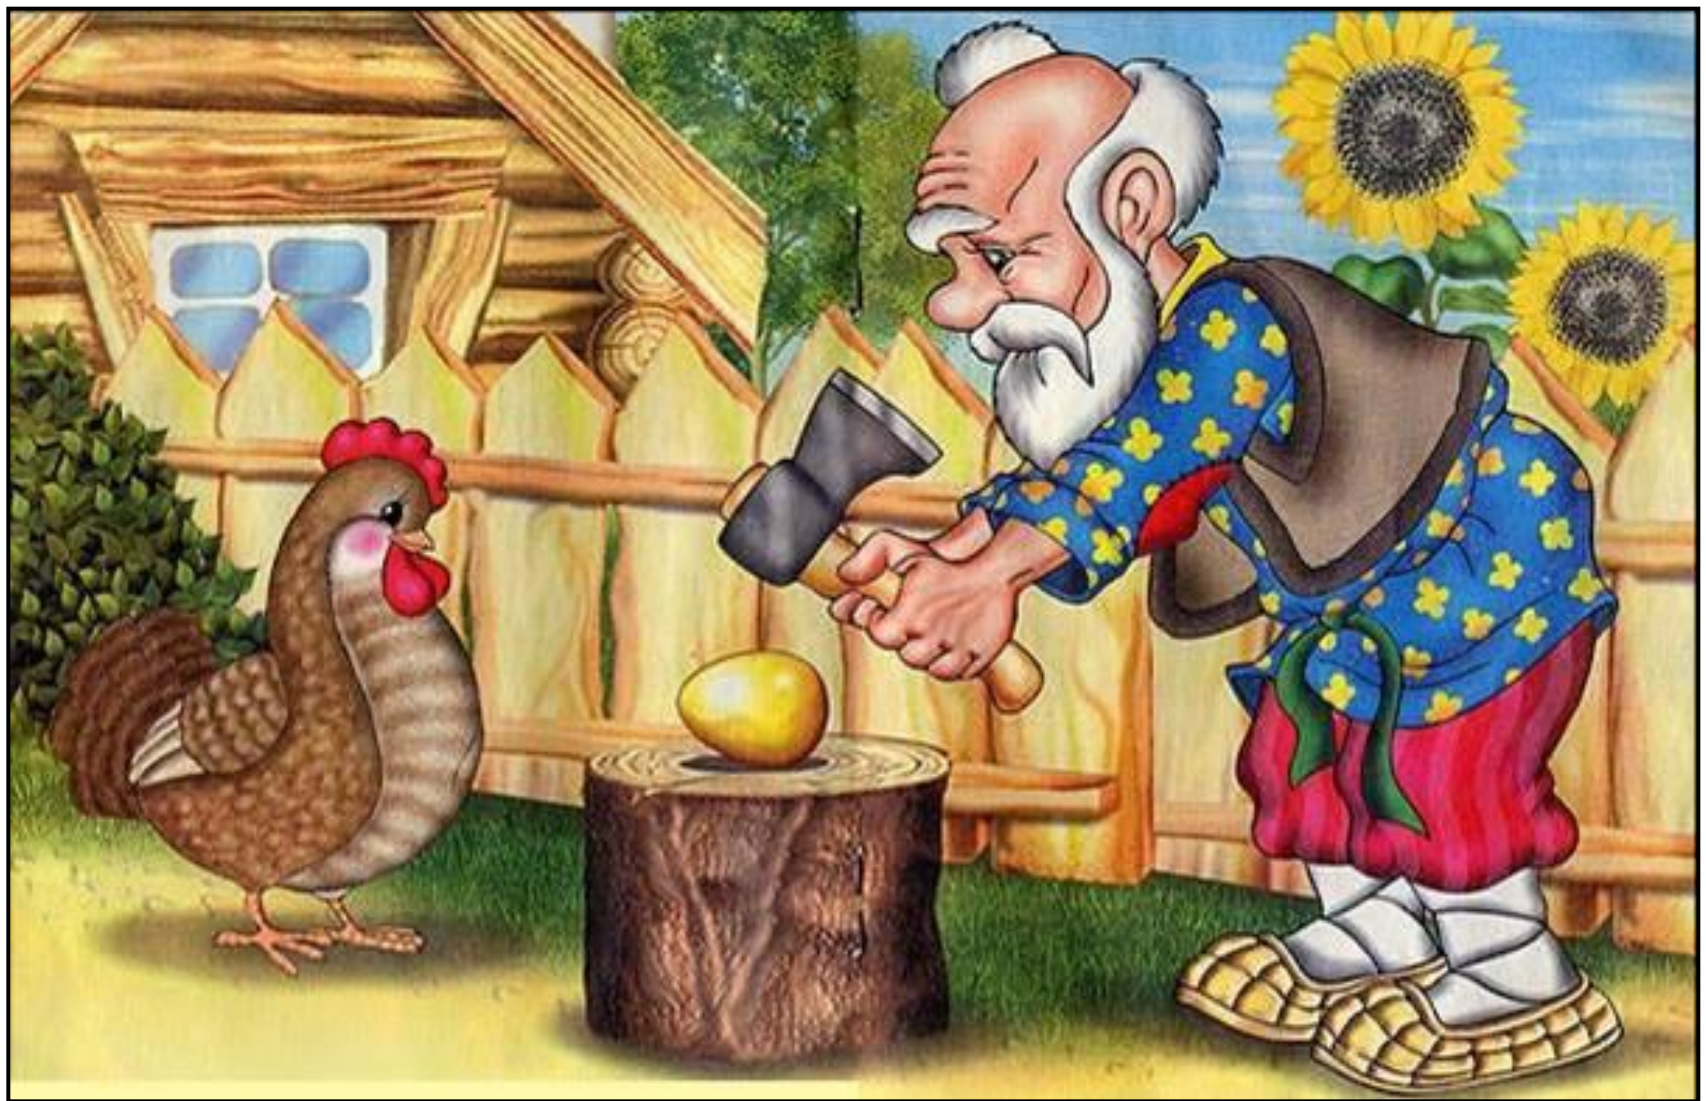

There lived an old man and his wife. And a speckled hen resided by their side.

The hen one day laid an egg, not ordinary egg but golden it was.

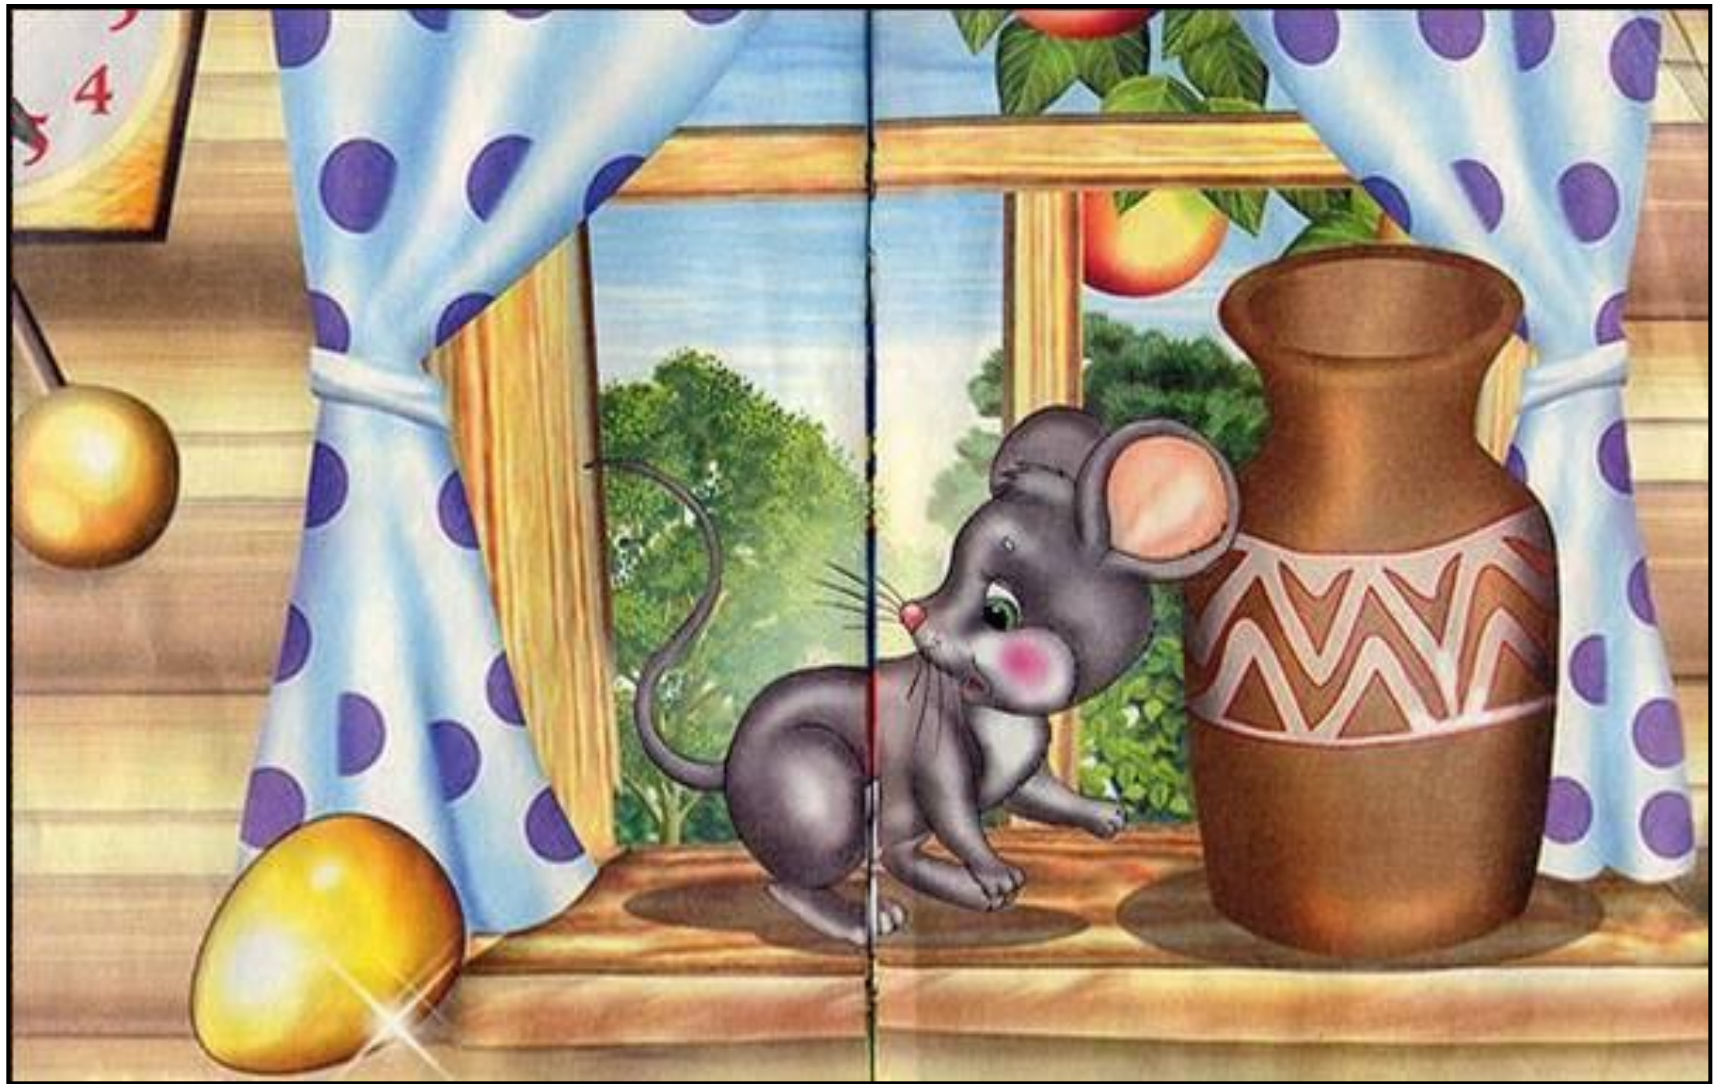

Tap-tap! – the old man tried, but the egg wouldn't crack.

Tap-tap! – the old woman tried, but the egg wouldn't crack.

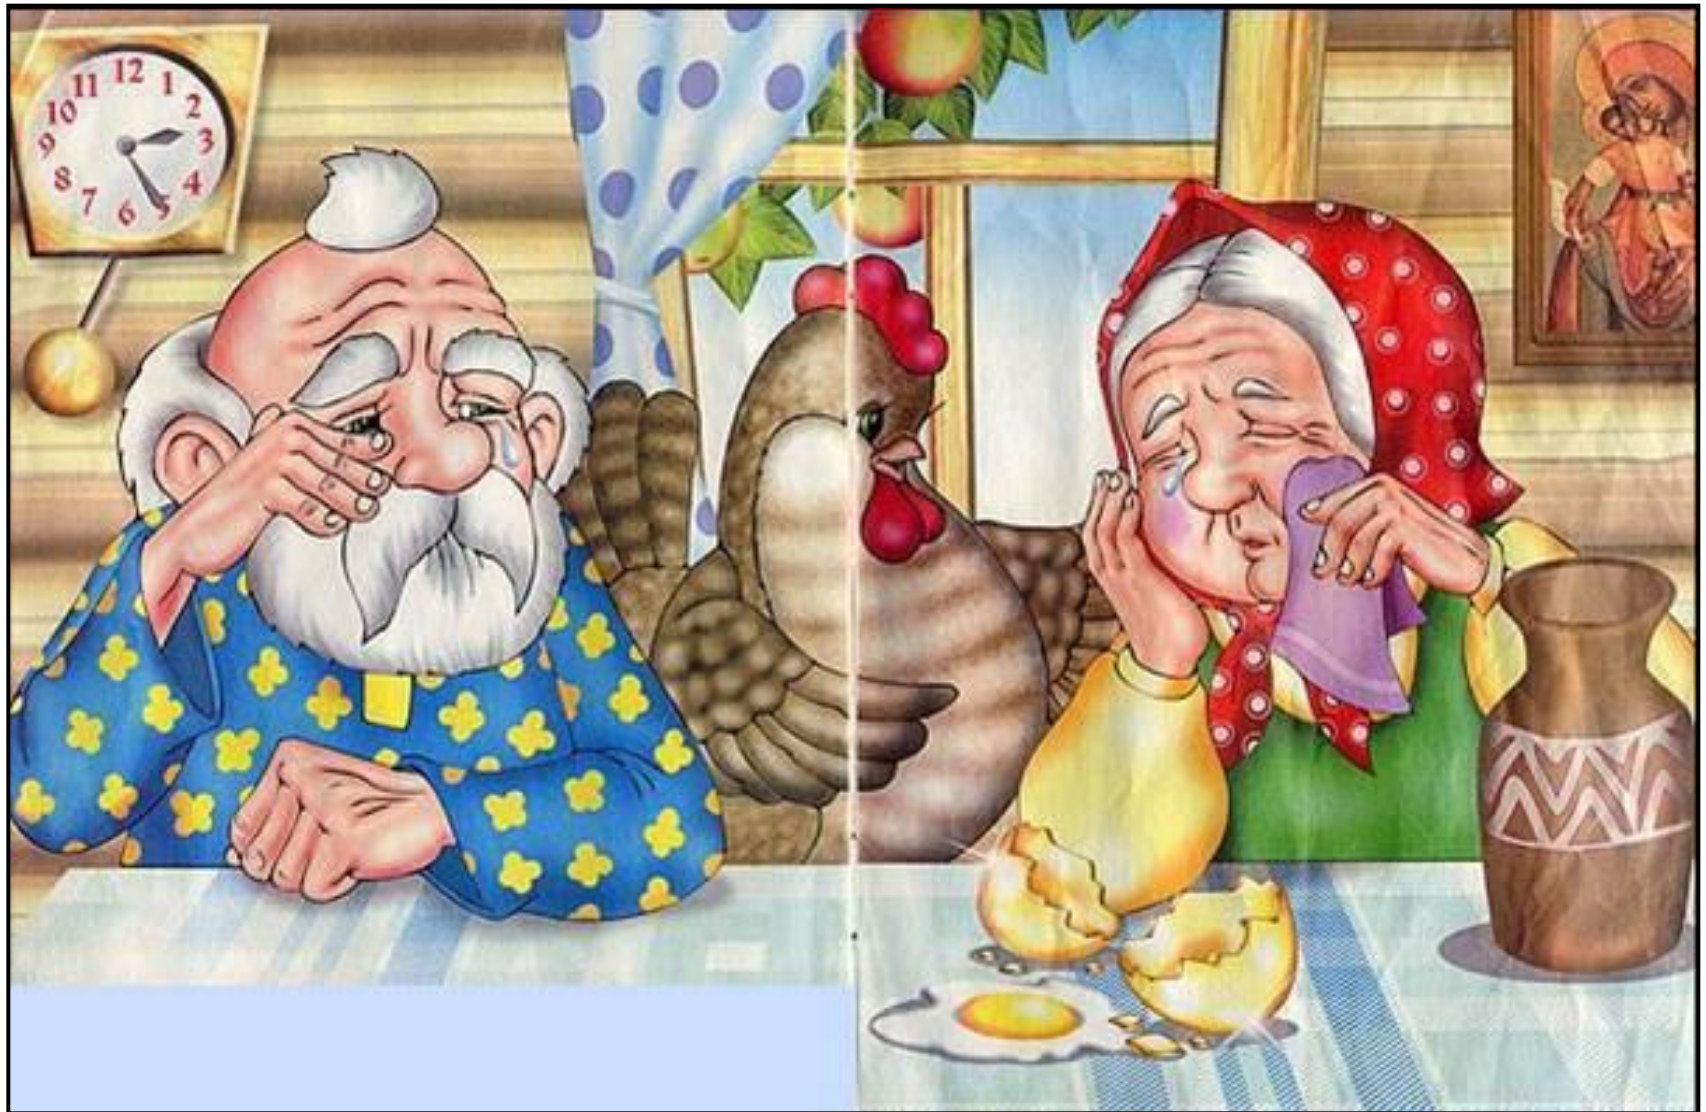

Out ran a little mouse waving its tail,...

...down fell the egg and was cracked.

Tears were shed by the old man and his wife.
- Don't cry! - said the speckled hen. - I'll lay another egg for you, not golden, just ordinary it will be
