SPORTS IN ENGLAND

Most schools in England have a sports day once a year in late spring or in summer. The sports day is looked forward to by the whole school. On that day schools have no lessons. If a school has no playing-field, the children are taken to the field in buses. When they arrive all the competitors change into their sports clothes. The running track is circular ("track" is a prepared path for racing; "track is circular" means that the path goes round or it has the shape of a circle) and inside it are places for the high jump, the long jump and throwing the discus. All these events take place at the same time as the running, so there is plenty to watch. There is a large blackboard on which the results are chalked up for all to see. In the middle of the programme there is a break for lunch and if it is a sunny day, the children sit on the grass eating their sandwiches. If the weather is not so warm, they manage just the same. It is only if it begins to rain that they give up their programme and go back to school.

At the end of the day the captain of the winning team is presented with a shield, the winners of different events are congratulated and the children leave the place.

It is surprising how sunburnt they can get in one day in the open air and they all feel better for their sports day.

Answer the following questions

- When do most schools in England have a sports day?
- Where do all children go if their school has no playing-field?
- How is that day organized?
- Which competitions do they take part in?
- Do we have the similar events at our school?
