

UTAH

It is located in the southwest region of the country

The state capital is Salt Lake City

The Great Salt Lake is four times more salted
than sea water

Deserts cover about one third of all Utah

Wasatch Front is a metropolitan region that runs from north to south with the Wasatch mountain

THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

Freebies Abound on Bustling Streets

Throng of people a lure to those promoting items from coffee to condoms

BY JESUS LOPEZ JR.

THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

Protesters, scalpers and tourists are not the only people on Salt Lake City's Main Street sidewalks. Men with coffee urns strapped to their backs are giving out samples. Some plug wasp juice, and a Utah AIDS Foundation volunteer dressed as a condom promotes the benefits of safe sex.

It's all part of street scene unlike pretty much anything the capital city has seen, and it probably will last until the Winter Olympics' Closing Ceremony on Feb. 24.

"I love it," says Sean Carlson, the guy wearing the urn and handing out cups of Nescafé cappuccino. "My background is communications and public relations, and it's just fun to get out there and meet people."

Carlson and colleague Aviel Miller work for Corville Media, a marketing firm hawking the instant coffee through the Olympics.

Nearby, Eddie Clark, sporting a Vespa hat, tells people what the athletes are drinking.

"It's a wasp extract," he says, holding out a water bottle with a wasp floating in yellow liquid. "It's not like tequila — you don't drink from a bottle with an insect." Clark says athletes drink from little bottles produced in Japan.

Down the street, a 6-foot tall Durex condom hands out "safe sex" packets that include two condoms and a glow stick.

"People are really open to it," says Utah Aids Foundation volunteer Jill Sparks, who inhabits the costume. "It's a good way to break the ice with people."

A woman pulls out her camera and poses with Sparks for a picture.

The suit always attracts a crowd, which helps out the foundation's cause, Safe Games 2002.

"Everybody loves it," says Sparks' helper, Robert Jones. "Everybody wants a picture. Everybody wants a condom."

It's that kind of scene

One of the most important newspapers in Utah is Salt Lake Tribune

Jesus Lopez/The Salt Lake Tribune

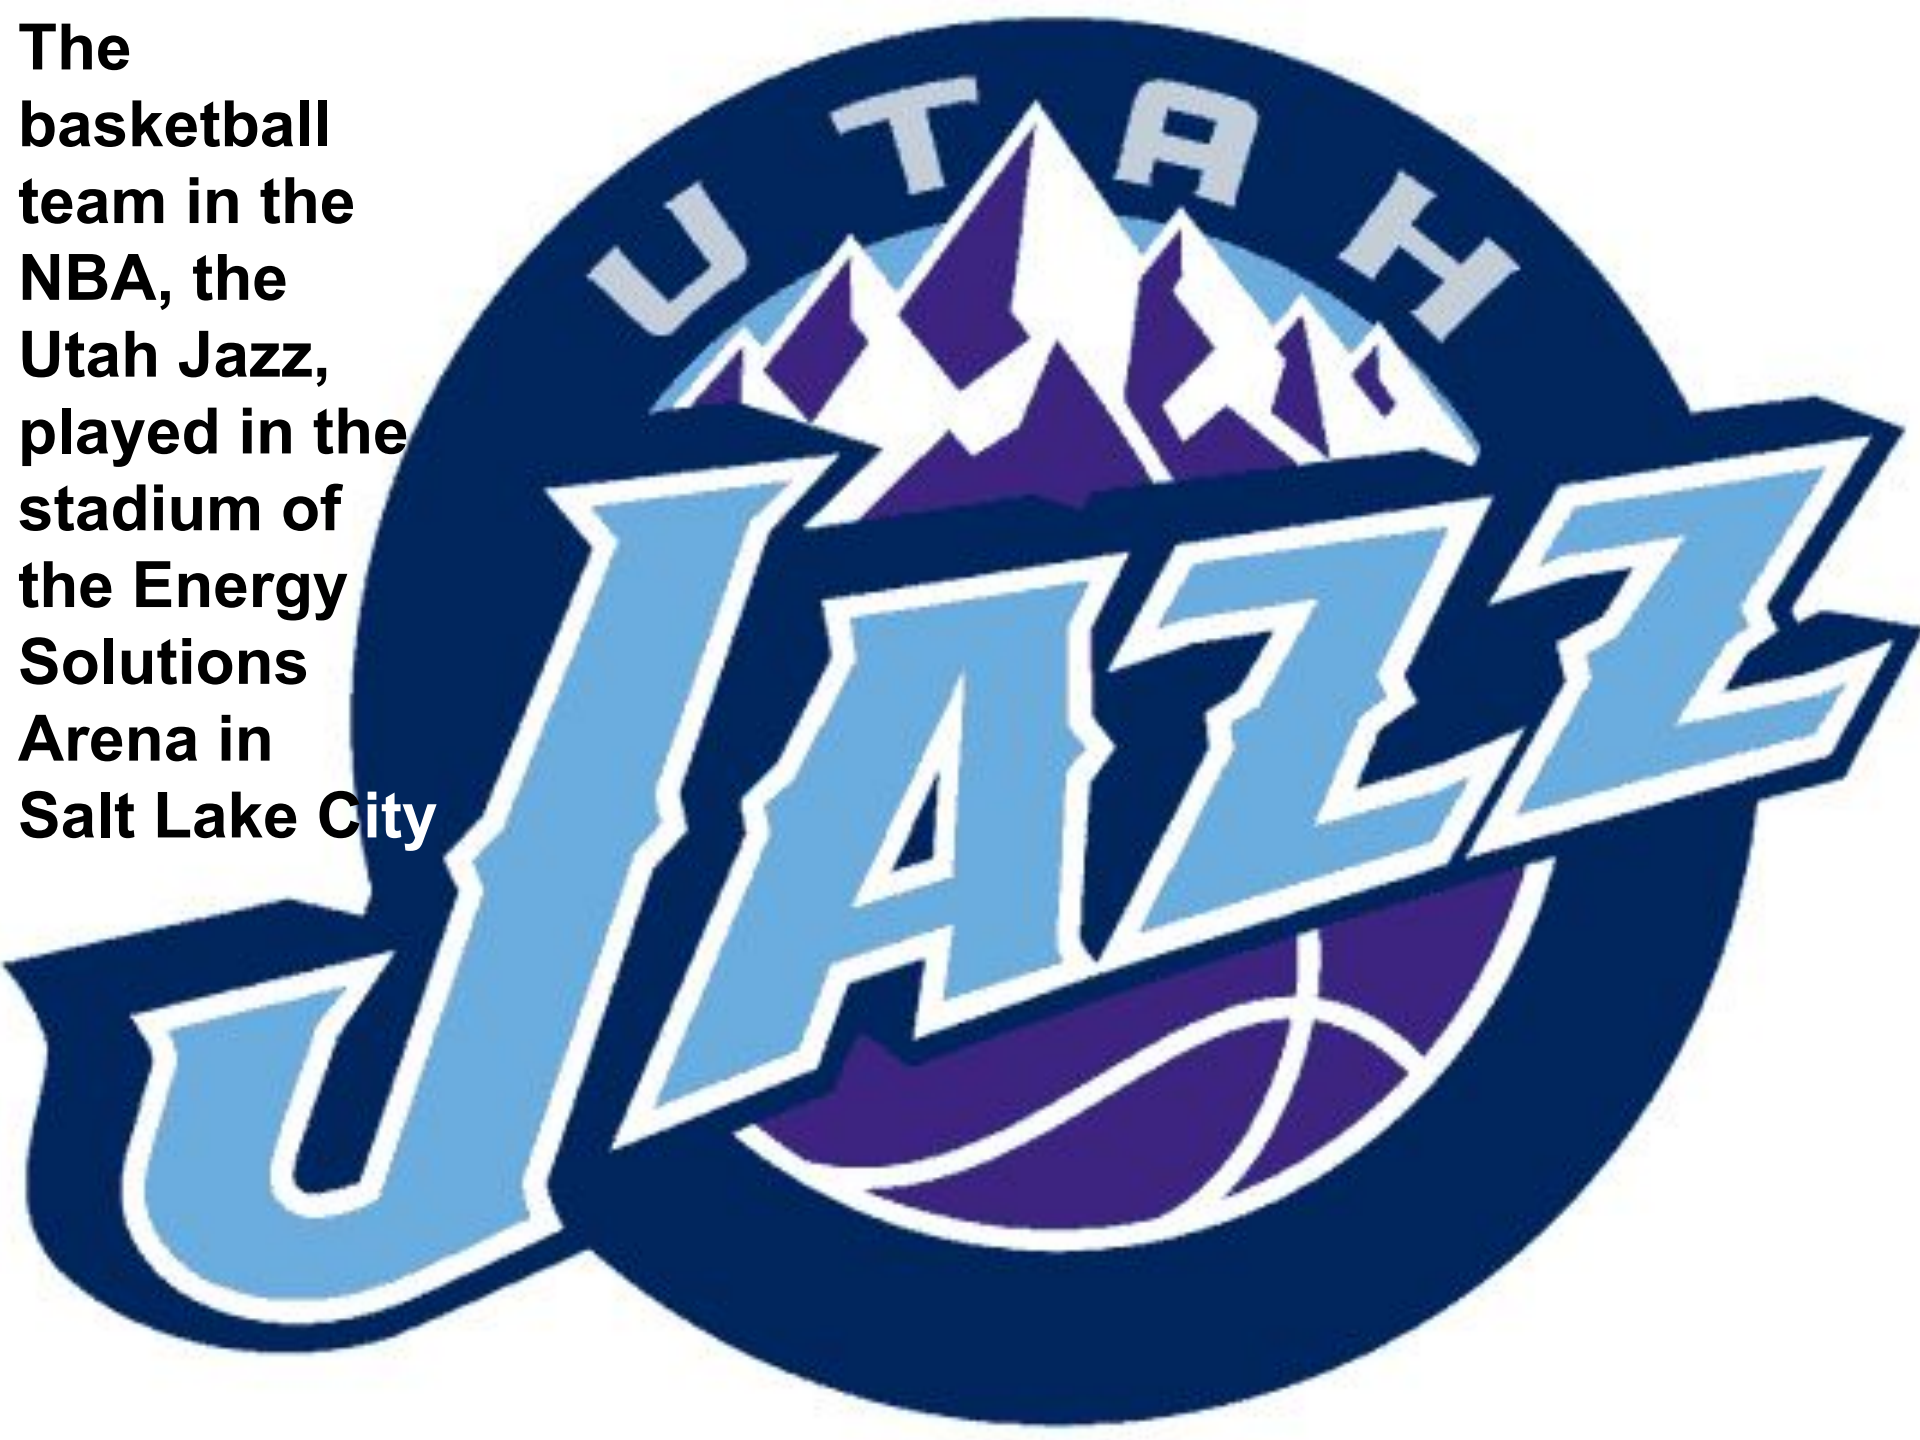

Sean Carlson totes Nescafé on his back and hands out cappuccinos near 200 South and Main

Utah is an important paleontological center that the state seeks to preserve places like Dinosaur National Museum.

The
basketball team in the NBA, the Utah Jazz, played in the stadium of the Energy Solutions Arena in Salt Lake City

The soccer team Real Salt Lake of MLS play in the Rice-Eccles
Stadium

The Governor is Jon Huntsman, Jr.

The state of Utah is divided into 29
counties.

Many
movies
are filmed in Utah.
One is High School Musical

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 2

The Genealogical Society preserves documents and make them accessible to all students who are studying Genealogy

This is the flag of Utah

This is the shield of Utah

The first Americans to settle in the region of Utah were Mormons.

In 2002 the Olympics were held in Utah