I want to tell you
about the history of London Zoo.

London Zoo is the world's oldest scientific zoo. It was opened in London on 27 April 1828, and was originally intended to be used as a collection for scientific study.

Exotic animals were first taken to Britain in the thirteenth century when King Henry III received a gift of leopards and elephants. Later he was presented with a polar bear that liked fishing in the Thames.

Later Queen Charlotte was given the first zebra to come to Britain. She kept it near Buckingham House. Soon the animals were moved to Regent's park. Giraffes have been an attraction At London Zoo since four of them arrived in 1839. One of the female gave birth to six babies within five years.

1830- The collection of animals was greatly enlarged with the addition of the royal menagerie from Windsor and animals from The Tower of London.

1839- the first giraffes appeared in the Zoo.

1847- The Zoo opened its door to the public.

1849- The Zoo opened the first Reptile House.

1850- In this year the Tsar of Russia presented two bisons to the Zoo.

1853 -The first public Aquarium was opened.

1880- In this year the first Koala bear arrived to live outside Australia.

1881- The first Insect House was opened.

Now I tell you about animals.

Today London Zoo houses a collection of 767 species of animals, with 17,502 individuals, making it one of the largest collections in the United Kingdom.

There are many exotic animals at London Zoo: elephants, giraffes, sea-lions and polar bears, brown bears and foxes, and big and little monkeys. There are many different kinds of birds there too. Some of them have very beautiful bright colors.

If people want to see the fishes they must go to another house and pay a second time. The Fishes are in a great glass box. There are many different kinds of beautiful fishes there. It is very interesting. In the Children's Zoo children can watch and talk to and touch young animals. Of course the people who look after the young animals watch the children.
