AN ENGLISHMAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE

About 80% of British people live in houses. Detached houses are usually in expensive suburbs, quite far from the town centre, near to the countryside. Semi-detached houses are often nearer to the town centre. Terraced houses and blocks of flats are much cheaper and can be found in town centres. Most British houses have a garden. Most gardens, even small ones have flowers and a lawn.

This is the back of a country cottage. Many British houses have front gardens too.

HOME, SWEET HOME

Owning your own home is a part of the American Dream. Most of Americans save for years, then make a down payment and take a mortgage or loan for the rest of the money. But some people never own a house and rent an apartment in a building called condominium somewhere close to the centre. Out in the suburbs and in the country, home is more likely to be a one- or two-family house.

Traditional American houses are two stories high and made of wood or stone.

MORE PROVERBS AND SAYINGS CONCERNING HOME

- There is no place like home.
- East or West, home is best.
- Burn not your house to rid it of the mouse.
- People who live in glass houses should never throw stones.
- Build your house upon a rock.
- Don't build your house upon a sand.

Think of the Russian equivalents of the given proverbs and use your imagination to illustrate one of them.
