The city of Birmingham

A scenic landscape photograph showing a wide river valley. The foreground is dominated by dense, green forested hillsides. In the middle ground, a wide, light-colored river flows through the valley. The background features rolling mountains under a blue sky with scattered white clouds. The overall scene is bright and natural.

The river Alabama

The river «Alabama» gave the name to this state.
The river Alabama was named by the native Indians living on its coast.

“Yellowhammer State”

The State Alabama is called “Yellowhammer State” for fun because in days of Civil war soldiers of Alabama’s army of Confederation sewed on the uniform yellow patches. They are like wings of the bird Yellowhammer who is one of the state symbols.
