

A nighttime photograph of a cityscape reflected in water. The sky is a mix of dark blue and orange from the setting or rising sun. In the background, there are several multi-story buildings, some with lights on. A prominent feature is a bridge or overpass structure in the middle ground, illuminated by a series of bright, warm lights. The water in the foreground is dark, but it perfectly reflects the lights from the bridge and the buildings, creating a shimmering effect. The overall mood is serene and urban.
