

WELCOME to KAZAN

- Kazan is the capital of the Republic of Tatarstan, the port city is located on the left bank of the Volga River in the place where the Kazanka River flows into it, which divides the city into two approximately equal parts. The official 1000-year anniversary of the city was celebrated in 2005.

The oldest landmark of the city is the Kazan Kremlin. It officially included UNESCO in the list of World Heritage sites. On its territory is the Spasskaya Tower and the Annunciation Cathedral, as well as the official residence and office of the President of Tatarstan.

- In 2005, the construction of the Kul-Sharif mosque was completed on the territory of the Kazan Kremlin. A separate story exists at the falling tower Syuyumbike. According to legend, Queen Syuyubmike jumped from the tower, not wishing to obey the conqueror of Kazan.

- The city center is a continuous set of attractions. Here you can walk along the pedestrian street of Bauman, it is called the Kazan Arbat

- Other important attractions are new sports facilities, most of which have already been built and put into operation for the Universiade and the subsequent development of sports in the republic.

Thank you for attention!
