Advantages

- Students become more responsible for their decisions
- More time for working and earning money for an independent life
- If you combine working and studying at the same time, it denotes that you are a hard-working and ambitious person
- You can pay attention only to the subjects which are actually useful for you
- You won't waste your time on pointless subjects which you don't really need

Disadvantages

- You may become fully devoted to your job and have no time for self-education
- Lots of teachers are against it whatever the reasons, so they might have negative attitude towards you
- Passing the exams gets more difficult if you don't attend classes
- Eventually you might end up lagging behind other students
- Self-education is difficult and requires time and effort if you want to succeed

What is your opinion about the optional attendance?

Would you approve of such an idea as a future teacher?
