

A large flock of birds, likely geese or swans, is captured in flight against a clear blue sky. The birds are scattered across the upper two-thirds of the frame, with some in sharp focus and others blurred. Below the sky, a line of green trees marks the horizon. In the foreground, a body of water is visible, with some birds resting on the shore or in the shallow water. The overall scene is bright and natural, suggesting a spring or summer setting.
