Пример систематического обзора

The screenshot displays the Cochrane Library interface. On the left, a search bar contains the text 'heart attack' with a 'Go' button. Below the search bar, there are options to 'View selected', 'Unselect all', and 'Save selected'. A list of 17 reviews is shown, with the 12th review, 'Dipyridamole for preventing stroke and other vascular events in patients with vascular disease', highlighted. The main content area shows the title of this review, the authors 'De Schryver ELLM, Algra A, van Gijn J', and the date of the most recent substantive amendment: 25 February 2002. Below this, there is a citation for the review. The 'ABSTRACT' section is divided into three parts: 'Background', 'Objectives', and 'Search Strategy'. The 'Background' section states that patients with transient ischaemic attacks (TIA) and minor ischaemic strokes are at risk of serious vascular events and that dipyridamole, when added to aspirin, reduces the incidence of major vascular events by 13 percent. The 'Objectives' section lists two goals: to assess the efficacy of dipyridamole versus control in the secondary prevention of vascular events in patients with vascular disease, and to assess the safety of dipyridamole versus control in the secondary prevention of vascular events in patients with vascular disease. The 'Search Strategy' section describes the search process, including the use of the Cochrane Stroke Group Trials Register and other relevant Cochrane Groups. The 'Selection Criteria' section describes the inclusion criteria for the review, including randomised long-term secondary prevention trials with concealed treatment allocation, treatment for > 1 month, starting within 6 months after presentation of an arterial vascular disease, and the absence of other antiplatelet drugs. The 'Data collection and analysis' section describes the methods used to collect and analyze the data, including the use of two reviewers to select trials and extract details of randomisation methods, blinding of treatments and assessments, and the use of intention-to-treat analysis.
