Лингвистическое наблюдение

Книга – наш лучший друг !

Книга — это величайший учитель всего человечества. В ней открывается прекрасный мир, воспитывается не_праздность, а доброта. Книги поднимают нам настроение и не дают скучать. Читая книги, мы плачем над несчастиями и невзгодами людей, которые страдали от невежества. Мы любим книги, где герои борются с неправдой.

"Right," she said, slugging through her coffee.
"Green light, now figure it out." I looked at her.
"What do we do when a light turns green?"
Martine crumpled her paper and said,
"So," she said. "Did you decide yet?"
"Huh?"

"About the truck. Yes, or no?"
"What truck?" I asked.
"Everett's truck, what else. It's a good one."
"I didn't have the remotest opinion of it," couldn't imagine why she thought I would. I was

"You don't think it's a stupid idea, though?"
"What idea is that?" I asked her.
"You and me going in on it?"
"Going in on it?" I asked. "You mean, on the "Jesus! Where have you been?"

"Sorry," I said. "I must have missed something."
We were on her block now, and I had been cerely apologize. Run it by me again."

She sighed. "See, Everett bought the truck in Howard County—" she said.

"Howard County, you?" I tried to look at her, but she

"Pardon?"
"Your car's worth thirty thousand, but you have looked it up in a book?"
I started laughing. I said, "My car's worth what?"
"They've got these books that give you the value of every used car ever made. So I went to the bookstore and flipped through one, and there it was: $15,000. My car coupe in excellent condition is worth thirty thousand dollars.
I was stunned. But I did think to say, "The value book claim my car is in excellent condition."
