Finland

Officially the Republic of Finland, is a country situated in Northern Europe. It is bordered by Sweden, Norway and Russia, while Estonia lies to its south across the Gulf of Finland.

The

The political system of Finland is defined by the Constitution. Finland is a presidential republic.

According to the Constitution, the President of Finland is the head of state and responsible for foreign policy in cooperation with the Cabinet. The current president is Tarja Halonen.

Around 5.4 million people live in Finland. It is the eighth largest country in Europe in terms of area. The capital of Finland is Helsinki. The other large cities include Tampere, Turku, Oulu.

The Fauna

The territory of Finland can be subdivided into three ecoregions: the Scandinavian and Russian taiga, mixed forests and Scandinavian birch forests and grasslands.

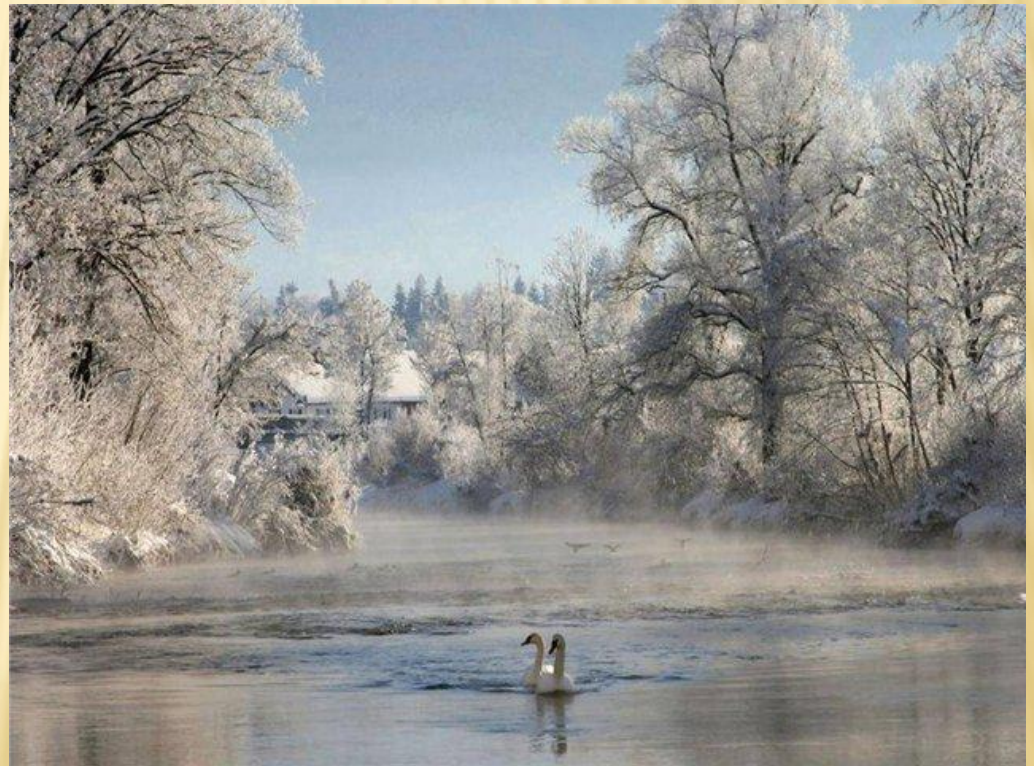

Similarly, Finland has a diverse and extensive range of fauna. There are numerous native animal species, bird species, fish species and reptile species present today. Large and widely recognized wildlife mammals found in Finland are the brown bear, grey wolf, elk (moose) and reindeer. Of some seventy species of freshwater fish, the northern pike, perch, Atlantic salmon and others are plentiful.

Climate

The Finnish climate is suitable for grain farming in the southern regions.

Finland has a humid and cool semicontinental climate, characterized by warm summers and freezing winters. The climate type in southern Finland is north temperature climate.

Summers in the southern Finland last 4 months (from the mid of May to mid of September). In northern Finland, particularly in Lapland, a subarctic climate dominates, characterized by cold winters and relatively warm, short summers. Winters in north Finland are nearly 7 months long. Summers in the north are quite short, only 2–3 months.

The Population

The population of Finland is over 5 million people.

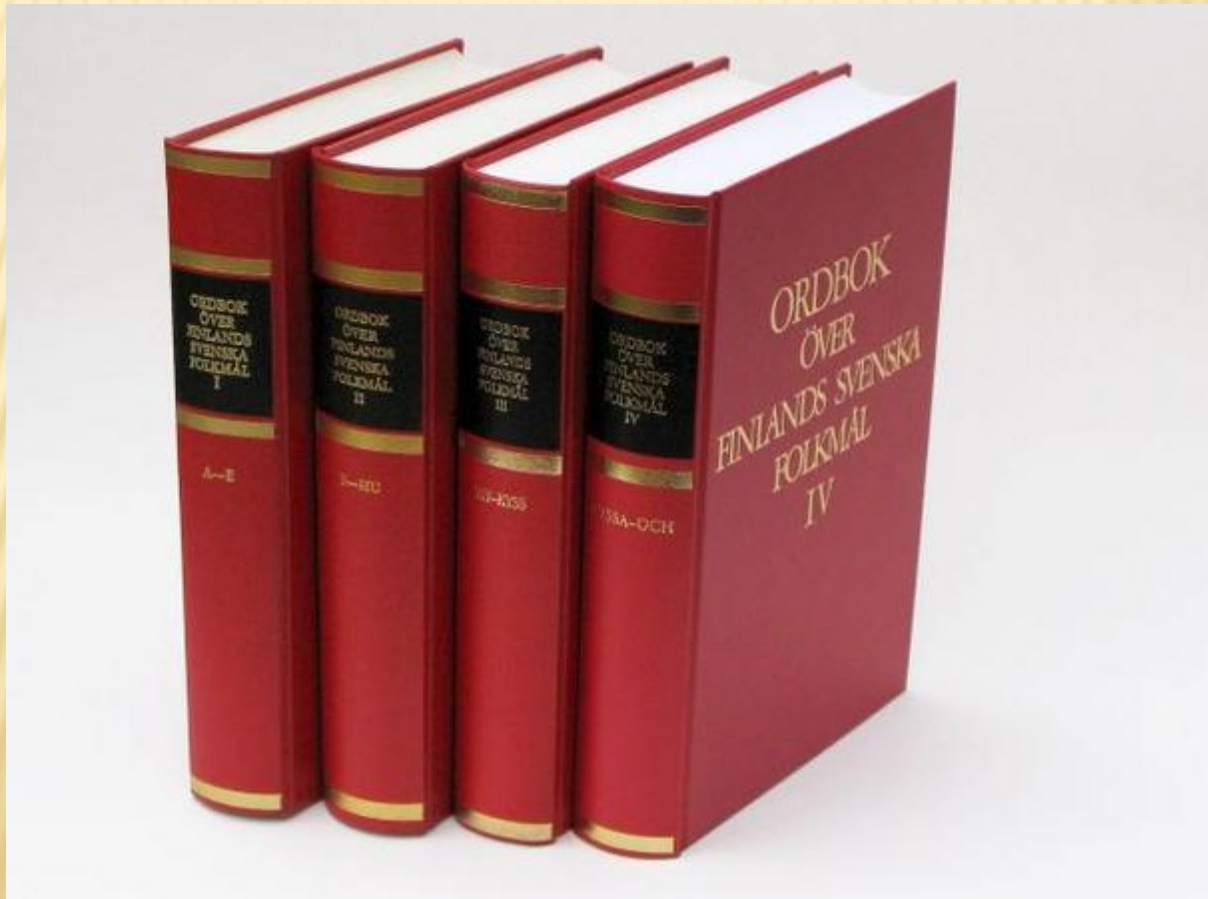

It is the third most sparsely populated country in Europe after Norway and Iceland. Finland's population has always been concentrated in the southern parts of the country.

The share of foreign citizens in Finland is 2.5% and most of them are from Russia, Estonia and Sweden.

Languages

Finnish and Swedish are the national languages of Finland, although Finnish dominates in most parts of the country

The Lohimaa estate

Lohimaa is a paradise for fishermen, but also for all lovers of outdoor activities. The Lohimaa fishing estate located in the heart of Finland in Tervo is known as one of the best Europe's salmon doorsteps.
