Portrait painting is a genre in painting, where the intent is to depict a human subject.

The term 'portrait painting' can also describe the actual painted portrait.

Portraitists may create their work by commission, for public and private persons, or they may be inspired by admiration or affection for the subject.

Portraits are often important state and family records, as well as remembrances.

Welcome to the portrait gallery by Walter Wyles!

Walter Wyles (1925-2017), whose illustrations graced women's magazines from the fifties to the seventies when they were selling up to three and a half million copies every week, was the first British illustrator to be commissioned to draw romantic illustrations by an American magazine .

Every
portrait that
is painted
with feeling
is a portrait
of the artist,
not of the
sitter.

Oscar Wilde

In art, there
is no need for
color; I see
only light and
shade. Give
me a crayon,
and I will
paint your
portrait.
Francisco
Goya

Get yourself a mirror and paint your own portrait, over and over. It's a great chance to experiment, you'll discover things about yourself, and you don't have to pay the model!

Susan Avishai

Nothing in a portrait is a
matter of
indifference.
Gesture,
grimace,
clothing, decor
even – all must
combine to realize a
character.
Charles
Baudelaire

The general purpose of the portrait is to create some kind of monument to the sitter and transmit some kind of sympathy or understanding.
Paul Brandford

A good portrait
ought to tell
something of
the subject's
past and
suggest
something of
his future.
Bill Brandt

Clothes
should not be allowed
to take over
the portrait.
Simone
Bingemer

I never paint a portrait from a
photograph,
because a
photograph
doesn't give
enough
information
about what the
person feels.
Francesco
Clemente

I have painted many portraits of people and I have painted many portraits of trees. Trees are more tranquil to work with, never demanding, never complaining their portrait doesn't look right.

Thank You!
