History

- In 1965, the 'Snurfer' was developed as a child toy by Sherman Poppen.
- Two skis were fastened and a rope was placed at the front end to afford control and stability.
- Sherman called the sport 'snurfing', a combination of 'snow' and 'surfing'.
- Jake Burton called the sport 'snowboarding' in 1977.
- Early snowboarders, mostly male teenagers, were often viewed as rebels and risk-takers.
- Snowboard debuted as an Olympic sport in 1998.
