

The consequences of good and bad governance

Куракина Екатерина
304 б ГМУ

The diagram features a central question, "What happens when a country does not have a good civil service?", set against a background of a world map and silhouettes of people. Five blue arrows radiate from the central text to five rectangular boxes, each containing a negative outcome: "non-achievement of national objectives" (top-left), "no socio-economic progress" (top-right), "corruption" (bottom-left), "poverty" (bottom-center), and "suffocating red tape" (bottom-right).

non-achievement of national objectives

no socio-economic progress

What happens when a country does not have a good civil service?

corruption

poverty

suffocating red tape

Results

People resort to use force

Crime

Bribery

FAILED STATE

The diagram features a central text 'The consequences of good governance' with three blue arrows pointing to boxes labeled 'Peace', 'Prosperity', and 'Progress'. The background includes a faint world map and silhouettes of people.

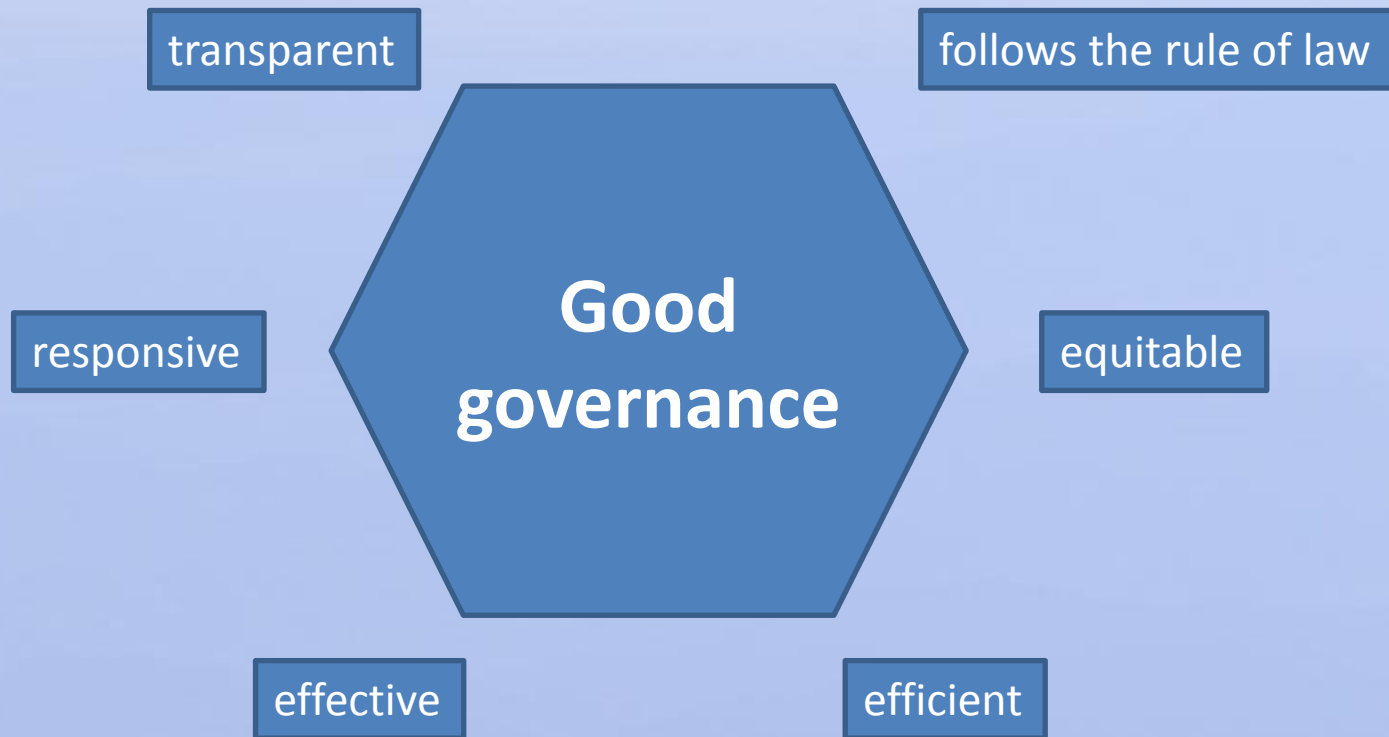

Peace

Prosperity

The consequences of good governance

Progress

Good governance has 6 major characteristics:

Thank you for your attention!