THE "GOLDEN-CRESTED 'LITTLE FRIEND OF ALL THE WORLD': PRINCESS ELIZABETH OF YORK.

Princess Elizabeth, in this charming photograph above, has just finished the day of holding highland. It is seven months since her return with her parents, the Duke and Duchess of York, on their return from Russia. Describing her as the fairest creature, Lady Cynthia Asquith wrote in her newly published book, "The Duchess of York" (issued in our last number): "Princess Elizabeth . . . knows how to smile sweetly and shrewdly. Perhaps she has inherited her mother's distinctive manner? Or perhaps she is blessed with the beauty of being blessed as well as of blessing? Certainly she is endowed with an excellent natural beauty. And her smile gives her remarkable. This golden-crested 'little friend of all the world,' who has a reputation of surpassing loveliness and a brilliant star gaze, has captured London." She was born, it may be recalled, on April 21, 1926.
