The Tempest

A painting by J.M.W. Turner titled 'The Tempest'. It depicts a woman with long red hair, wearing a blue dress and a red hat, standing on a rocky shore. She is looking out at a stormy sea with a ship in the distance. The scene is dramatic, with dark, turbulent waves and a stormy sky. The woman's hair is blowing in the wind, and she has a small brown bag slung over her shoulder. The foreground is filled with rocks and debris, including a wooden staff and a hat. The background shows a dark, rocky coastline under a stormy sky. The overall mood is one of awe and danger.

The story draws heavily on the tradition of the romance, and it was influenced by tragicomedy, the courtly masque and perhaps the commedia dell'arte.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

a comedy

A richly detailed painting depicting a magical forest scene. In the center, a woman with large, translucent wings and a crown stands holding hands with a man in a golden tunic and a red cape. They are surrounded by numerous other winged figures, some playing musical instruments. The forest is filled with lush greenery, flowers, and a large, muscular stone statue on the right. The lighting is dramatic, with a bright glow around the central figures and deep shadows in the surrounding woods.

The Taming of the Shrew
