Our Political Beginnings

- What basic concepts of government were held by American colonists?
- Which important English documents have had the most influence on our government?
- How were the governments of the thirteen colonies organized?

Basic Concepts of Government

The English colonists in America brought with them three main concepts:

- The need for an ordered social system, or government.
- The idea of limited government, that is, that government should not be all-powerful.
- The concept of representative government—a government that serves the will of the people.

The Thirteen Colonies

There were three types of colonies in North America: royal, proprietary, and charter.

- The royal colonies were ruled directly by the English monarchy.
- The King granted land to people in North America, who then formed proprietary colonies.
- The charter colonies were mostly self-governed, and their charters were granted to the colonists.

British Colonial Policies

- Until the mid-1700s, the colonies were allowed a great deal of freedom in their governments by the English monarchy.
- In 1760, King George III imposed new taxes and laws on the colonists.
- The colonists started a confederation, proposed an annual congress, and began to rebel.

Growing Colonial Unity

Early Attempts

- In 1643, several New England settlements formed the New England Confederation.
- A confederation is a joining of several groups for a common purpose.

The Albany Plan

- In 1754, Benjamin Franklin proposed the Albany Plan of Union, in which an annual congress of delegates (representatives) from each of the 13 colonies would be formed.

The Stamp Act Congress

- In 1765, a group of colonies sent delegates to the Stamp Act Congress in New York.
- These delegates prepared the Declaration of Rights and Grievances against British policies and sent it to the king.

The Continental Congresses

First Continental Congress

- The colonists sent a Declaration of Rights to King George III.
- The delegates urged each of the colonies to refuse all trade with England until British tax and trade regulations were repealed, or

Second Continental Congress

- In 1775, each of the 13 colonies sent representatives to this gathering in Philadelphia.
- The Second Continental Congress served as the first government of the United States from 1776 to 1781.

Common Features of State Constitutions

Common Features of State Constitutions
Popular Sovereignty	The principle of popular sovereignty was the basis for every new State constitution. That principle says that government can exist and function only with the consent of the governed. The people hold power and the people are sovereign.
Limited Government	The concept of limited government was a major feature of each State constitution. The powers delegated to government were granted reluctantly and hedged with many restrictions.
Civil Rights and Liberties	In every State it was made clear that the sovereign people held certain rights that the government must respect at all times. Seven of the new constitutions contained a bill of rights, setting out the “unalienable rights” held by the people.
Separation of Powers and Checks and Balances	The powers granted to the new State governments were purposely divided among three branches: executive, legislative, and judicial. Each branch was given powers with which to check (restrain the actions of) the other branches of the government.

- 1. The Declaration of Independence was signed in
  - (a) 1765.
  - (b) 1776.
  - (c) 1781.
  - (d) 1787.

- 2. The Stamp Act of 1765 was a law enacted by the British that
  - (a) increased the colonists' taxes.
  - (b) was repealed by the Magna Carta.
  - (c) the colonists ratified one year later.
  - (d) raised the price of postage stamps by two cents.

The Articles of Confederation

The Articles of Confederation established “a firm league of friendship” among the States.

Powers

Congress was given the power to declare war, deal with national finance issues, and settle disputes among the States.

Obligations

The States promised to obey Congress, and to respect the laws of the other States. Most other powers were retained by each State.

Weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation

Weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation

- ◆ One vote for each State, regardless of size.
- ◆ Congress powerless to lay and collect taxes or duties.
- ◆ Congress powerless to regulate foreign and interstate commerce.
- ◆ No executive to enforce acts of Congress.
- ◆ No national court system.
- ◆ Amendment only with consent of all States.
- ◆ A 9/13 majority required to pass laws.
- ◆ Articles only a "firm league of friendship."

Creating the Constitution

- Who were the Framers of the Constitution?
- What were the differences between the Virginia Plan and the New Jersey Plan?
- What were some of the compromises on which the Constitutional Convention agreed?
- What sources did the delegates draw on and how did they react when they completed the

Framers of the Constitution

Leaders of the Philadelphia Convention

- James Madison was the co-author of the Articles of Confederation.
- Gouverneur Morris was a lawyer who helped develop the U.S. system of money.
- Alexander Hamilton was a lawyer who favored a strong central government.
- George Washington was the successful leader of the Continental Army.

Some famous leaders who were NOT at the Philadelphia Convention

- Patrick Henry said he “smelt a rat” and refused to attend.
- Samuel Adams and John Hancock were not selected as delegates by their states.
- Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Paine were in Paris.
- John Adams was on diplomatic missions to England and Holland.

Constitutional Compromises

- The Connecticut Compromise

Delegates agreed on a bicameral Congress, one segment with equal representation for States, and the other with representation proportionate to the States' populations.

- The Three-Fifths Compromise

The Framers decided to count a slave as three-fifths of a person when determining the population of a State.

- The Commerce and Slave Trade Compromise

Congress was forbidden from taxing exported goods, and was not allowed to act on the slave trade for 20 years.

Influences on and Reactions to the New Constitution

Influences

- The Framers were familiar with the political writings of their time, such as works by Jean Jacques Rousseau and John Locke.
- They also were seasoned, variously, by the Second Continental Congress, the Articles of Confederation and experiences with their own State governments.

Reactions

- When the Constitution was complete, the Framers' opinions of their work varied. Some were disappointed, like George Mason of Virginia, who opposed the Constitution until his death in 1792.
- Most agreed with Ben Franklin's thoughts when he said,
"From such an assembly [of fallible men] can a perfect production be expected? It...astonishes me, Sir, to find this system approaching so near to

The Federalists and Anti-Federalists

The Constitution was very controversial at first, with some groups supporting it, and others attacking it.

- Federalists thought that the Articles of Confederation were weak, and argued for the ratification of the Constitution.

- Anti-Federalists objected to the Constitution for many reasons, including the strong central government and the lack of a bill of rights.

The Constitution is Ratified

- Nine States ratified the Constitution by June 21, 1788, but the new government needed the ratification of the large States of New York and Virginia.
- Great debates were held in both States, with Virginia ratifying the Constitution June 25, 1788.
- New York's ratification was hard fought. Supporters of the Constitution published a series of essays known as The Federalist.
